

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A judge issued a preliminary injunction Wednesday barring a threatened strike by Pittsburgh teachers, who said they'd walk out anyway.

A spokesman for the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, which represents a third of the city's 3,000 teachers, said picket lines would be formed at every school Thursday morning.

The court order, issued by Allegheny County Court Judge John P. Hester, bars union officials "from acting in concert by way of ordering, directing or taking any action calculated to engage in a mass strike and set up picket lines."

A statement issued by the federation said: "We have a mandate from the teachers that they want collective bargaining in Pittsburgh. We are not going to fail that mandate. Without the right to vote, teachers are already in jail."

The Board of Education asked Hester to issue an injunction Wednesday.

Board attorney Nicholas Unkovic argued that a teachers' strike would violate state laws against walkouts by public employees.

"The health and welfare of 80,000 school children would be affected," said Unkovic. "This union seems determined to go pell-mell ahead, regardless of the law."

Hester agreed the law clearly bars strikes by teachers.

Herman Foreman, attorney for the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, admitted the strike would be illegal. "But if so let the school board punish the teachers, not the court," said Foreman.

The court action was practically simultaneous with an attempt by John Tabor, recently appointed secretary of labor and industry, to get a 10 day cooling off period.

Albert Fondy, president of the 1,000-member federation, refused. But he said he was ready to delay the strike if the board agreed to discussions in "good faith."

"The board already has asked for a declaratory judgment in court and just this afternoon asked for an injunction against us. We consider this bad faith," said Fondy.

Union, school and city officials said they were ready for a strike.

The school board said it would use volunteers, supervisors and substitutes to try and keep the schools open. They conceded it would be a tough struggle.

The custodians for the 114 schools said they'd cross any picket lines, but they wouldn't let the temperature in the buildings get above 50 degrees.

Bruno Delanna, president of the Public School Employees Union, said the 200 cafeteria workers would not cross any picket lines.

North Vietnamese Shoot Down U.S. Helicopter near Khe Sanh

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese gunners shot down a big U.S. Marine helicopter Wednesday near besieged Khe Sanh on South Vietnam's northern frontier, U.S. headquarters reported Thursday. It said 22 U.S. servicemen were killed and one was wounded.

Headquarters said the CH46 Sea Knight was hit by heavy automatic weapons fire 11 miles northeast of the Khe Sanh combat base, where allied troops are surrounded by an estimated 40,000 Communists.

Across the country, fighting generally slackened, but the Viet Cong kept up its shelling and harassment at military installations on the fringes of Saigon.

For a second day, shells hit the South Vietnamese military academy early Thursday at Thu Duc, five miles northeast of Saigon. A government spokesman said the school was hit by 40 mortar rounds and 10 houses were damaged but no one was killed.

The spokesman said a U.S. truck convoy ran into a Viet Cong ambush also near Thu Duc before dawn Thursday. He said one serviceman and one Viet name civilian were killed and three servicemen were wounded.

A massive airlift has landed 4,000 of the 10,500 fresh American troops the Pentagon promised Gen. William C. Westmoreland for "insurance purposes" and 4,000 more are en route to Vietnam.

The American influx-ordered two weeks ago-shared attention Wednesday with sharp action in the central highlands and continued Communist pressures on the Saigon area and Khe Sanh, on the threatened northern frontier.

Wheeler Reports to Johnson; White House Mum on Details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, saying the enemy now holds some of the initiative, gave President Johnson and other top officials a new war report Wednesday that could lead to U.S. troop increases in Vietnam.

France Says Bomb Halt Would Lead to Peace

PARIS (AP) — France has information "explicitly" stating that an unconditional halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam would be the gesture needed to open negotiation on ending the war, a government spokesman said Wednesday.

It was assumed the information came from the North Vietnamese. France maintains a diplomatic mission in Hanoi and North Vietnam has a delegate general in Paris.

There was no comment in Washington, but American officials there said Secretary of State Dean Rusk had been informed of the statement before attending a Vietnam situation meeting at the White House with President Johnson and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The French government statement again stressed President Charles de Gaulle's position that unless talks begin shortly the war will spread through Southeast Asia and involve other nations.

De Gaulle has repeatedly criticized the U.S. role in Vietnam. He has referred to it indirectly as "monstrous", and said the withdrawal of American troops is the only real solution to the conflict. "There are no other ways than those we propose," he said in a New Year's address to the nation.

Thant, returning from talks with North Vietnamese representatives in Paris and New Delhi, had said Saturday that "it could be reasonably assumed" that an unconditional bombing halt would be followed by "meaningful talks...perhaps, within a matter of a few days."

Gov. George Romney Withdraws From Presidential Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney, whose candidacy never caught fire, pulled out of the Republican presidential nomination contest Wednesday to clear the way for another moderate to oppose Richard M. Nixon.

Romney told a crowded gathering of newsmen that "a critical moment" had arrived at which the dominantly progressive GOP governors should select a candidate to support their viewpoint.

Romney walked away from a question as to which man he would support. But Republican leaders agreed that his action had projected Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York toward a contest with Nixon, former vice president and the 1960 nominee.

From 16 to 18 of the Republican state executives, assembling here for a National Governors Conference meeting beginning Thursday, have said that if Romney faltered as the banner-carrying leader of the moderates they could support Rockefeller.

Arriving for the governors' conference, Rockefeller insisted in an interview his position as a noncandidate had not been changed by Romney's decision. But he said he plans conferences with Republican governors. He noted that the governors "have stuck together."

While he said he is not a candidate, the New York governor said again, as he had Saturday in Detroit, that he would accept a draft. He said he had tried to talk Romney out of withdrawing.

Romney has criticized President Johnson's Vietnam war policies, calling for neutralization of Southeast Asia. Nixon has supported Johnson's basic objective of fighting Communist aggression there. Rockefeller has given past support to the President's course but has been silent about Vietnam for months.

Communists Demand U.S. Halt Operations in Viet

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Delegates of 66 Communist parties demanded unanimously Wednesday that the United States halt all military operations in Vietnam, and pledged "all necessary support" to the Viet Cong and North Vietnam, Communist sources reported.

The conference's declaration of solidarity on Vietnam came after the Soviet Union in a separate development was reported to have drawn a rebuke from Romania by leading an attack on Red China despite an agreement to avoid name calling. Sources said the Soviets were joined by other countries in criticizing the absent Chinese.

It was at Romanian insistence that assurances were given to Communist parties before they came here that no party would be criticized. The meeting was called to discuss the Soviet plan for a world Communist conference.

This indicated Soviet determination to press ahead, after five years of hesitation because of Chinese and Romanian-type opposition, and hold a conference even if only three-quarters of the world's 89 Communist parties are willing to attend.

It was at Romanian insistence that assurances were given to Communist parties before they came here that no party would be criticized. The meeting was called to discuss the Soviet plan for a world Communist conference.

Rocky Maintains He's Not Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Wednesday that he still was not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination even though Gov. George Romney had stepped aside.

But he and his wife, Happy, were welcomed by Rockefeller enthusiasts and newsmen at the Governor's Conference reception for members of Congress like the star attractions.

"My position has not changed," Rockefeller repeated to newsmen. "I have no plans to change my plans."

Mikhail A. Suslov, Soviet parties were assailing them. The Republican leader has just made a U-turn that promises to provide the Senate voters for passage of an administration civil rights bill, with an open housing provision of sorts, that was doomed without his support.

Stevenson, who was willing to run for either office, apparently flunked out as a candidate when he said he couldn't guarantee to

Washington Indicates LBJ Handled Ill. Decision-Making

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington political community is wondering if President Johnson contributed to the failure of Illinois Democrats to produce a big-name opponent for Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, apparently will be opposed in the November elections by State Atty. Gen. William G. Clark.

The laborious process by which the Democratic slate-makers came up with Clark's name and that of Lt. Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro for the governor's race indicated these two were far from runaway choices for the top candidates in a critical state.

There had been talk for months that Sargent Shriver, head of the Office of Economic Opportunity, or Adlai E. Stevenson III, both generally listed in the big-name category, might be endorsed for the offices.

The President's close political relationship with Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who runs the Democratic party of Illinois, suggests that Johnson was consulted about every detail of the decision-making process.

Shriver didn't show up to make his case with the king-makers, a slight in which he would not have indulged if he had had any White House backing to run for either senator or governor.

If Johnson now appoints the poverty war director to an ambassadorship in Paris or some comparable job, a segment of the political community will conclude that the President didn't want his old friend Dirksen opposed by a Democrat who would attract outsized publicity in his campaign.

Dirksen has supported Johnson's basic Vietnam policies when many about him in both

Government Officials See Decline in Use of LSD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials say there are indications of a decline in use of LSD and express hope it means young people are heading scientific reports of danger in taking the hallucinogen.

The Food and Drug Administration says all its nine drug abuse control field offices around the country have been reporting a general decline in the amount of LSD encountered in the last eight months.

John Finlator, director of FDA's Bureau of Drug Abuse Control, said Wednesday there are no figures to show precisely what the decline has been. He said the reports are general estimates of "the amount of LSD we're finding on the street."

Asked whether the reports mean use of LSD has declined, Finlator said, "I think a prudent man could draw that conclusion."

First word of the reported decline came Monday in testimony by Food and Drug Commissioner James L. Goddard before a House commerce subcommittee.

Finlator, elaborating in an interview on Goddard's statements, took issue with a congressman's estimates on usage of LSD.

Meningitis Still Under Control

No new cases of spinal meningitis in the Warren area were reported Wednesday.

Dr. Robert Israel, superintendent of Warren State Hospital, said, "We hope we have this thing under control."

Two mental patients who contracted the disease Saturday are still in serious condition, Dr. Israel said.

A third patient believed to have contracted meningitis Sunday is in good condition.

The illness of a fourth patient, previously suspected to be meningitis, has been ruled out as an instance of the disease; that patient is still being kept in isolation, however.

The only death from meningitis reported in this area so far was that of Dr. Paul Frazer, a state hospital psychiatrist who died at his home Saturday.

Officer Who Testified Restored to Full Duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says it has restored to full duty the commander who was given a psychiatric examination after volunteering information to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee about the Gulf of Tonkin incidents.

The man involved, however, says he now fears that the Navy ultimately "may take reprisal action against him for his visit" according to Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman.

Fulbright late Wednesday issued the Navy's report on the commander, furnished in response to a request made to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara during last week's Gulf of Tonkin hearings.

Fulbright had asked McNamara if he knew about the case of the commander who "was picked up and sent to a psychiatric ward" the day after talking with the committee staff.

The identity of the commander was not disclosed.

The Navy said the commander had been undergoing psychiatric care at his own expense, considering himself to be suffering from a neurotic condition and experiencing marital difficulties.

"It was in this context that Commander (deleted) reported to Captain (deleted) on 17 November 1967 that he had made a secret visit to Senator Fulbright to disclose 'sensitive military information,'" the Navy statement said.

The commander agreed that a psychiatric examination was necessary and underwent hospital observation for about four weeks.

Fulbright said "the officer concerned has over 26 years of naval service and is still on active duty."

"I believe the public record should be clear on this point: the Navy's medical board, by a vote of 3 to 0, found him physically fit for duty."

Viet Cong Maneuvers Keep Allies Jittery, Off Balance

SAIGON (AP) The Americans and their South Vietnamese allies, waiting for the Viet Cong to drop the other shoe, are being kept jittery and to a certain degree off balance. The Communists too have their problems, American sources say. Another round of Red attacks on the cities is a good possibility, since there is no evidence the Viet Cong has fully disengaged from urban areas since their heavy assaults on Saigon and 40 other major population centers at the time of the Tet—lunar new year—celebration.

But the questions are: When and why?

The "when" is important. The South Vietnamese are required to balance the need for protection of city centers against the urgent need of getting troops back to rural posts to protect them. If they do not protect the rural areas, the Communists can overrun them at times of their own choosing. But if the vigilance in protecting the cities is relaxed, a Communist attack could cut into the allied rear.

An assessment of the "why" is equally important. What was the Communist objective in attacking the cities and what might be the aim of yet another heavy round?

The strategy could involve an attempt to isolate the cities from the countryside. It could be an attempt to hurt the cities' economy by interfering with and blocking off commerce. It could be an indirect way of attacking the countryside, by first drawing considerable numbers of protective troops away.

Whatever the aim, the uncertainty contributes to jitters. The enemy shells cities, makes probing attacks, fights in the environs of Saigon. The allies never know where he is going to hit next.

There is, however, a possibility that the Viet Cong is suffering from a severe manpower problem. The Tet offensive cost heavily and American officials are persuaded that the Communists are hurting badly in this department.

If this is so, the Communists also have their dilemma. Should they risk using up more manpower to follow up the momentum of the offensive with another, or should they risk losing that momentum by waiting to replenish their forces.

The extent to which the Viet Cong has been losing troops has become manifest in the northern part of South Vietnam.

Most of the enemy forces from the 2nd Corps area northward are now North Vietnamese regulars, Americans say—to the extent of 75 per cent in the 1st Corps area. In the 2nd Corps area there appears to be an even mixture of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. Only the 4th Corps in the south has forces which are almost entirely Viet Cong.

This can create problems for the enemy. The North Vietnamese—at last reports still infiltrating at the rate of 6,000—6,500 a month—have less knowledge than the Viet Cong of local people and terrain, and may get less help from local people. There are likely to be differences on matters of strategy and tactics.

Whether there is, soon or eventually, another major offensive against the cities probably depends upon the Communists' own assessment of their manpower problems and capabilities in the light of their losses.

But they are keeping the allies guessing and maintaining a pressure which adds to general urban nervousness. Strict dusk to dawn curfews still remain in effect, with their economic and psychological effects. Possibly the next thrust will not be at the cities at all, but the long expected offensive in the Khe Sanh area. The allies must wait and see.

Federal Efforts To End Copper Strike Mount

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal efforts to end the 32-week-old copper strike mounted Wednesday night with plans to file charges against 26 striking unions and high-level talks at the White House.

The National Labor Relations Board said it authorized the filing of charges that union demands for companywide negotiations amount to a refusal to bargain with Kennecott Copper Corp.

White House consultations were held with five governors and members of Congress of several copper producing states. Also reported present were Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge, who have led previous federal efforts to solve the strike.

Tom Johnson, assistant presidential press secretary, said the meeting was held at the request of the governors and there was "general discussion of the serious situation existing in the copper producing states."

He said the governors and the legislators informed President Johnson that they have urged both company and labor unions to resume bargaining.

Some firms affected by the copper strike renewed demands on Johnson to invoke an 80-day Taft-Hartley Act injunction to halt the walkout by some 60,000 workers in 22 states.

Damage Totals $115 In Traffic Mishap

Property damage was listed to total $115 in a 7:54 a.m. traffic mishap Wednesday.

Borough police officers Charles Musante and Warren Davis stated that a Toyota truck driven by James W. Shepard, 567 Foillett Run rd., Warren, traveling east on Pennsylvania avenue, was struck on the right front fender at the Oak Street intersection by a station wagon operated by William R. Ward, 149 N. Gallatin avenue, Uniontown, Pa.

Police said the Ward vehicle was traveling north on Oak, stopped for a stop sign and proceeded into the intersection when the driver failed to see the Shepard truck.

Ward was cited for a right of way violation, according to police.

JCC Plans Six Labor Seminars

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. — Officials at Jamestown Community College announced Wednesday a series of six labor seminars are being planned at the local college. The series to be called "Labor Forum—A dialogue" will be a joint effort by JCC's division of continuing education, and the Jamestown Central Labor Council.

The two-hour dialogues will consist of brief presentations on certain selected topics by area labor spokesmen and guest lecturers and will be followed by a discussion by class members. Robert A. Hanson, education chairman for the Central Labor Council, said the dialogue series will be open to union and non-union members.

"What we hope to do with the series," he said, "is to examine society as a whole and labor's role in it."

Robert J. Pasciullo, director of JCC's continuing education, said preliminary plans call for one session a week during the evening hours. Further information, he said, is available at the college.

National Forge Credit Union Elects Officers

The National Forge Federal Credit Union held its 12th annual dinner dance and business meeting Saturday at St. Paul's Center, Saybrook, with approximately 275 members in attendance.

Following dinner, a business meeting was conducted which included the election of officers and committee members, and the submission of annual reports.

New officers for 1968 are John Knapp, president; Eugene Shine, vice president; Pat Gerardi, secretary; and Sherwood Fleming, treasurer. Three board members, Albert Seymour, Tim Howard and Myron Carr were re-elected, as were credit committee members J. Regis Thompson, Scott Stuart and Russell Rudolph. The supervisory committee re-elected H. Stanley Deshner, Fernel Johnson and Paul Johnson.

Entertainment was provided by Beverly Fleming and Sherman Van Pelt, with music for dancing provided by the Ray Arnold Band, Bradford.

George Eberhardt, supervisory committee clerk, served as general chairman of the affair.

Man Escapes Serious Injury

A 22-year-old Warren man escaped serious injury in a one car accident on Route 62 near Fentonville, N.Y., Wednesday, according to police chief Robert Payne, Frewsburg, N.Y.

Allen Phillips, W. Fifth ave., was southbound on Route 62 about 5:30 p.m., chief Payne reported, when the car he was operating went off the highway, severed a utility pole and careened over an embankment striking a tree.

According to chief Payne, Phillips complained of a possible shoulder injury and was suffering contusions of the right hand. Phillips told police he would contact his personal physician when he returned to Warren.

The 1964 Chevy Phillips was driving was considered a total loss, police said.

Pollution Report Not Due Very Soon

TORONTO (AP) — Arnold Heeney, chairman of the International Joint Commission's Canadian section, said Wednesday the commission will present a report "in another year or so" on its investigation of pollution in lakes Erie and Ontario and the international portions of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Heeney made the statement at a news conference following a closed commission meeting with representatives of five local governments.

The commission, which Heeney described as "an investigative agency on behalf of the two governments" of Canada and the United States, has been conducting the pollution study since 1966.

The meeting Wednesday was to determine what preventive measures are being instituted by local authorities with regard to possible pollution from drilling for oil and gas near Lake Erie.

Local officials at the meeting represented Ontario, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York, all of which border on Lake Erie.

Stolen Truck

Is Recovered

ERIE—A stolen truck used in the theft Tuesday morning of $3,000 worth of television and stereo equipment in Erie was recovered Tuesday afternoon by police near Findley Lake, N.Y.

The truck and merchandise were taken from General Tire Co. A tip from an unidentified Findley Lake man led police to the truck. A large stereo was still in the vehicle when it was found.

The truck was returned to Erie and police are examining it for fingerprints.

Det. Capt. Mario S. Bagnoni said the thieves entered the building some time between 9:30 p.m. Monday and 4:30 a.m. Tuesday by removing a roof vent, lowering themselves into the building, loading the merchandise onto the tire service truck and driving away.

Wounded in Viet

Army Spec. Keth L. Black, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Black of 368 River rd., Starbrick, lost his right foot when hit by fragments from a booby trap Feb. 24 in Vietnam while on a combat operation, according to a telegram received by his parents Wednesday.

The message said his attending physician has stated he is not seriously ill.

Spec. Black, a 1966 graduate of Warren Area High School, entered the Army in September, 1966. He has been in Vietnam since September, 1967.

Alleged Murderer Is Being Tested

RIDGWAY—James F. Guido, one of the three alleged murderers of an elderly Kersey man, was sent to Torrance State Hospital for psychiatric examination Tuesday.

The examination was requested by Guido's attorney, George Daghir, in a petition to Elk County court Monday. Judge Paul B. Greiner signed the petition and Guido was taken to the hospital by Sheriff Raymond Kranski from county jail where he had been confined since his arrest February 21, 1968.

Guido is one of three persons charged in the fatal robbery. Miss Bernadette C. Rigard, 22, of St. Marys, is free on $10,000 bail. She was released last Friday in custody of her parents.

Scott Calls On Rocky To Enter Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., called on Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York Wednesday to jump into the race for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Scott, who has supported the candidacy of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, was questioned by newsmen following Romney's withdrawal from the race.

Asked whom he was backing now, Scott replied: "Who else but Nelson?"

Scott, a former Republican national chairman, said he hoped the Republican governors, meeting in Washington, would be galvanized into action behind a single candidate.

"I commend Governor Romney for his personal courage in the forthright declaration that he has not been able to rally sufficient support among Republican publicans to continue his candidacy," Scott said in a statement.

By Romney's action, Rockefeller is now released from his pledge of support to Romney, Scott said.

"We who admire Governor Rockefeller look forward to his starting an active campaign for President in the near future."

Rockefeller, who has been in office longer than any other Republican governor, "is well fitted for the immense job of chief executive officer of the United States," Scott said.

"There is very strong support for Governor Rockefeller in Pennsylvania and I know that sentiment is showing itself elsewhere in America."

Seranton Sees Draft Rocky Movement

HARRISBURG (AP) — Former Gov. William W. Scranton said Wednesday Michigan Gov. George Romney's decision to withdraw as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination would probably set off a movement to draft New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

"Many of the people who have supported George, I am sure will now strongly support Gov. Rockefeller, who has been George Romney's prime sponsor," Scranton said.

Seranton, in Harrisburg as a delegate to Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention, would not say what affect Romney's announcement would have on his own plans.

An early Romney supporter, Seranton appeared to be leaning toward Rockefeller in recent weeks.

Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer and State Republican Chairman John Jordan were in Washington at the time of Romney's announcement and could not be reached for comment.

Apollo 6 Launch Has Been Delayed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency said Wednesday delays in normal testing and checkout procedures have forced a four-day postponement in the scheduled launch of Apollo 6, moving the giant spacecraft's launch time back to March 25.

Apollo 6 may be the last unmanned shot before the United States attempts to send astronauts to the moon.

Spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the delay in launching Apollo 6 includes modifications necessary in the craft's surface module propulsion tank and exchange of equipment in its first phase engines and in the guidance and control system.

"No one item can be exclusively identified for the cause," NASA said. The spokesman described the problems as being minor.

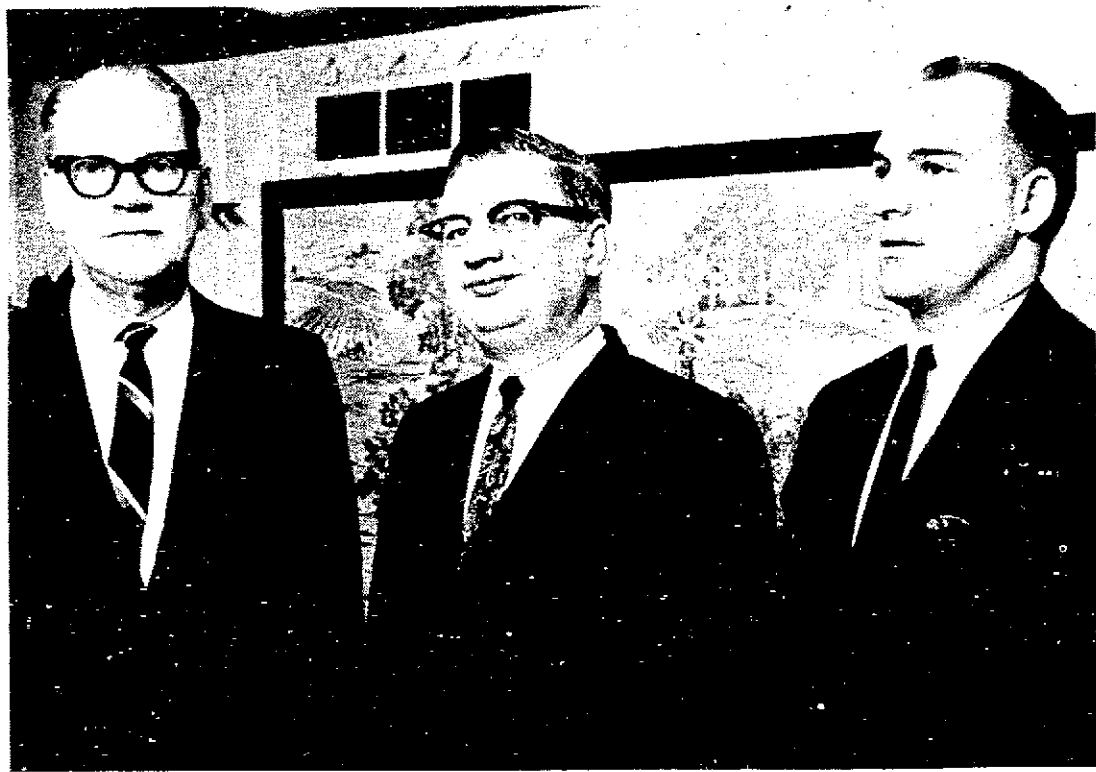

The planet Venus was once known as Lucifer.

Compromise Civil Rights Bill Bars Housing Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home owners who sell their houses through a real estate broker would be barred from discriminating against Negroes or others, beginning Jan. 1, 1970, under a compromise civil rights bill introduced in the Senate Wednesday.

This is one of the key provisions of a combination open housing and civil rights protection measure worked out in an effort to break a legislative stalemate that has tied up the Senate for six weeks.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who played a key role after first opposing any open housing bill, introduced the compromise late in the day.

The open housing section would take effect in three stages, with a ban on discrimination in the sale or rental of housing applying immediately only to federally assisted housing.

Essentially, this would cover houses financed with FHA and VA loans and public housing projects. A person who had an FHA loan and had not paid it off would be prohibited from discriminating in the sale of his property, as would persons who obtain government-guaranteed mortgage loans in the future.

The second stage would become effective Dec. 31, 1968, and would cover multi-unit housing.

The third and final stage would apply to all single-family owner-occupied homes sold through real estate brokers.

If an owner handled the sale himself, he would not be barred from discriminating against prospective buyers. Also exempted would be the renting of rooms or apartments in owner-occupied dwellings of not more than four units.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D. Minn., a chief sponsor of open housing, told newsmen that the compromise, when fully effective, would cover about 44.6 million units, or about 68 per cent of the nation's housing.

A person who felt he had been discriminated against in trying to buy a house because of his race, color, religion or national origin would have two remedies open to him.

He could go to the Housing and Urban Development De-

IRS Declares Steen Owes $1.8 Million

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Charles Steen, whose uranium discoveries a decade ago brought him from rags to riches, owes the government $1.8 million, the Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday.

The IRS seized his office building near the Reno airport and Cassair, Inc., his light plane sales and service company at the airport.

The taxmen filed liens totaling $1,839,932 in several Nevada counties against Steen property including his Arabian horse ranch in Washoe Valley between Reno and Carson City.

Steen's worth has been estimated as high as $60 million. He made his fortune in uranium near the southern Utah desert town of Moab. The IRS says he owes the $1.8 million on individual income tax returns from 1958 to 1960.

His attorney, Mead Dixon, said Steen was out of town looking at a mine.

"It is my understanding he now has business negotiations underway that should clear this all up within the next 35 to 40 days," Dixon said.

"The tax matter itself is a disputed issue. Mr. Steen has his own tax counsel who are reviewing the claims of the Internal Revenue. I am informed they intend to contest the claims through the usual channels."

Dixon said Steen's staff has told him they have the funds to lift the liens, and claimed "the Internal Revenue moved without notice and levied an arbitrary assessment. The exact amount of the tax has never been determined by audit."

Shafer Asked to Give Teachers Pay Hikes Now

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Democratic Leader Herbert Fineman challenged Gov. Shafer Wednesday to throw the full weight of his administration behind legislation to give teachers an immediate salary increase.

No Lace on Mini-Skirts!

In recent weeks the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce changed its name to the Warren County Chamber of Commerce—for some reason, became affiliated with the national chamber organization, installed new officers and a board of directors.

Tuesday night the organization decided to toss in a bid to host the 1969 annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce executives.

This may be all good and well. But with the exception of new officers and directors, the rest of the hodge-podge is getting headlines in the news media while downtown

Warren lies dormant in need of urban renewal programs, parking and other facilities.

The group Tuesday night did act to pursue means of locating a Holiday Inn in the Warren area. A good move if the action comes now. It also named standing committee chairmen and this slate included names of men who have been behind a progressive Warren for many years and we are sure will continue to be.

But let's forget the lace on the mini-skirt in 1968 and take a good hard look at the needs that have been allowed to grow skirts the length of a century ago.

Guru. Bound

The doings of The Beatles are minutely recorded here in England and, as a matter of fact, elsewhere, inasmuch as it is true what one of the Beatle gentlemen said a year or so ago, that they are more popular than Jesus Christ. It is a matter of considerable public interest that all four of The Beatles have gone off to a place called Rishikesh, in India, to commune with one Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

The gentleman comes from India, and the reigning chic stipulates that at Rishikesh, India is where one goes to have a Spiritual Experience. Accordingly, The Beatles are there, as also Mia Farrow, who, having left Frank Sinatra, is understandably in need of spiritual therapy; and assorted other types including, the press reports, a space physicist who works for General Motors. It isn't altogether clear what is the drill at Rishikesh, except that — and this visibly disturbed a couple of business managers of The Beatles — a postulant at the shrine of Mr. Yogi is expected to contribute a week's salary as an initiation fee. A week's salary may not be very much for thee and me, but it is a whole lot of sterling for a Beatle, and one gathers from the press that the business managers thought this a bit much, and rather wish that The Beatles could find their spiritual experience a little less dear.

The wisdom of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi is not rendered in easily communicable tender. It is recorded by one disciple that he aroused himself from a trance sufficiently to divulge the sunburst, "Ours is an age of science, not faith," a seizure of spiritual exertion which apparently left him speechless with exhaustion, I mean, wouldn't you be exhausted if you came up with that? It is reported that The Beatles were especially transfixed when the Maharishi divulged, solemnly, that "speech is just the progression of thought." One can assume that the guru's own mouth, that "anything that comes from direct experience can be called 'science.'" It is a wonder that the entire population of the world has not gravitated towards the cynosure capable of such incandescent insights.

I am not broke, but I think that if I were, I would repair to India, haul up a guru's flag and — I guarantee it — I would be the most successful guru of modern times. I would take The Beatles' weekly salary, and Mia Farrow's, and the lot of them, and I would come up with things like: "Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering; forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any; even as I — I forgive you, so also do ye. And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be thankful."

To the especially worldly, I would say: "Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time. Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man." Can it be imagined that I would be less successful, quoting these lines, from a single letter of St. Paul, than Maharishi Mahesh Fakir has been? The truly extraordinary feature of our time isn't the faithlessness of the Western people, it is their utter, total ignorance of the Christian religion. They travel to Rishikesh to listen to pallid seventh-hand imitations of thoughts and words they never knew existed. They will go anywhere to experience spirituality — except next door. An Englishman need go no further than to hear Evensong at King's College at Oxford, or to hear high mass at Chartres Cathedral; or to read St. Paul, or John, or the psalmists. Read a volume by Chesterton — the Everlasting Man; Orthodox; The Dumb Ox; and the spiritual juices begin to run, but no, Christianity is, well, well what? Well, unknown.

The Beatles know more about carburetors than they know about Christianity, which is why they, like so many others, make such asses of themselves in pursuit of Mr. Gaga Yogi. Their impulse is correct, and they reaffirm, as man always has, and always will, the truism that man is a religious animal. If only they knew what is waiting there, available to them, right there in Jollie Olde England, no costlier than 2/6d at the local bookstore. It is too easy nowadays to found new religions, though the vogue is constant. Voltaire was once abashed at the inordinate iconoclasm of one of his young disciples who asked the Master how might he go about founding a new religion. "Well," Voltaire said, "begin by getting yourself killed. Then rise again on the third day."

Con Con Has Been A Success

(ED NOTE: "A Modern Constitution for Pennsylvania, Inc.," has been one of the prime organizations in the forefront in the fight for modernizing Pennsylvania's State Constitution via the Constitutional Convention ending its three-month chore today. How that organization regards the convention is expressed by Executive Director Robert Sidman in this guest article for Columnist Mason Denison.) By ROBERT SIDMAN Executive Director

A Modern Constitution for Pennsylvania HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's fifth constitutional convention in its history ends today—a convention that could, and in fact frequently did, completely reverse itself overnight! But that's over now.

Nevertheless, any assessment of this unique, confusing, turbulent event can come to only one overall conclusion: the convention has been a success.

It has achieved most of its goals. Voters may approach the polls on April 23 with confidence. The delegates they chose last November to finish the job of modernizing the Constitution of 1874 have done well.

This appraisal may differ somewhat from the day-to-day reports that have appeared in newspapers throughout the state. If it does, it is because it is being made with the benefit of hindsight, an advantage that is denied to reporters and commentators.

Let's look at some of the proposals — of local interest — it would seem safe to predict will have popular approval on April 24:

—Row Office: Coroners and Surveyors were removed from the list of constitutionally required county officials. Appointed Public Defenders were added.

—Home Rule: All local government, including counties, will be eligible for home rule charters. Referenda to approve these charters may be called by the governing bodies, themselves, or by the voters in a new (to Pennsylvania) procedure called "initiative." Home rule governments will have all powers and rights not denied to them by the State Constitution or laws, or by their own charters.

—Optional Local Government: The General Assembly must provide optional forms of government for all types of municipalities, and the voters shall have the right to choose which of them they want to be governed by.

—Intergovernmental and Area Powers: All local governments will have the right and power to share functions and responsibilities with other governments.

—Boundary Changes: Municipalities will have the power to merge or change boundaries, subject to local voter approval and to uniform regulations of the General Assembly; the governing bodies need not approve, but the voters must. Also, the State must set up an agency to study these problems, to advise communities, and to initiate local referenda.

—Local Debt: Except for Philadelphia, the debt limits of all local government, including school districts, are to be set by the Legislature, based on a percentage of local revenues. Philadelphia's debt is not to exceed 13.5 percent of the assessed valuation of its taxable real estate, but any increase of more than 3 percent will require voter approval.

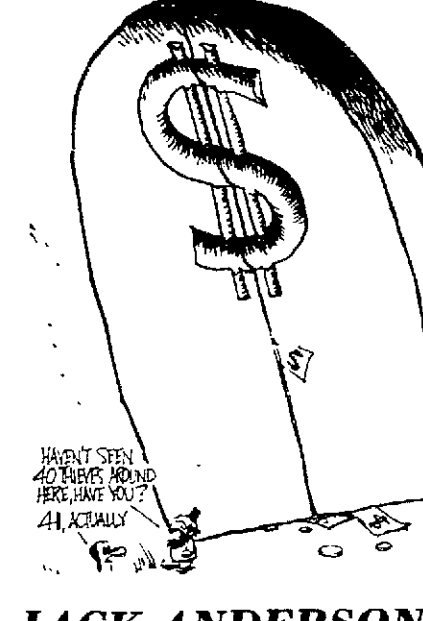

—L o c a l Apportionment: Where local governing bodies are not elected at large, they are to be elected by apportioned districts of compact size and substantially equal population.

—Apportionment Commission: A five-man Commission is provided to break the state down to 50 senatorial districts and 203 representative districts, compact in size and as nearly equal in population as is possible, whenever a Federal census is taken. If the Commission fails to act, the State Supreme Court will apportion the state.

—State Debt: Pennsylvania's 120-year prohibition against state debt gives way to a proposal authorizing the General Assembly to borrow, for capital projects, only up to 175 percent of the state's average tax revenues. Greater debt can be incurred only with the approval of the voters in a statewide referendum.

Certainly these issues deserve the earnest consideration of every citizen of the state, as well as some of the more statewide issues I have not mentioned such as the proposal for the judiciary of the state, state budgets and state taxes. Now it's up to the voters of Pennsylvania to make their decision.

A Perilous Business

DA NANG — Sgt. James Milonas's instructions were terse. "We'll be on the ground at Khe Sanh less than two minutes," he said. "As soon as the cargo is dumped, pile out of the plane and run like hell for the nearest bunker."

Our C-123 assault transport was loaded with anti-tank ammo for beleaguered Khe Sanh, which the North Vietnamese hope to turn into an American Dien Bien Phu.

The ammunition was packed in boxes, which were lashed to a roller bed. After we hit the runway at Khe Sanh, the rear ramp would be lowered, and the load would roll out the tail as we taxied down the field. The departing passengers were supposed to follow after the cargo on the double.

The reason for the haste was that Communist mortars, artillery and rockets were zeroed in on the air strip. As long as our giant transport plane remained on the strip it would be a dead duck in a Communist shooting gallery.

The record turn-around for unloading a plane at Khe Sanh, Sgt. Milonas said, had been 43 seconds. No transport plane, however, stayed on the ground longer than two minutes. Even that was long enough for most planes to pick up shrapnel. Two had even been destroyed on the runway.

The rain forests on the lower slopes around Khe Sanh are teeming with North Vietnamese. Their exact strength and location are hidden beneath a canopy of dense green foliage. Weeks ago they overran the small village of Khe Sanh. But the Marines still hold the highlands.

Their main bastion forms an irregular rectangle about one mile long and half a mile wide on a shell-pocked plateau. The Marines also occupy the mountaintops — hills 861, 881, and 950 — looking down on the plateau.

These heights dominate one of the main infiltration routes into South Vietnam. The Marines, more accustomed to assault than defense, have been ordered to cling to the high ground.

Anxiously, the Joint Chiefs in Washington have asked Gen. William Westmoreland in Saigon whether he can hold the Khe Sanh bastion against the massing North Vietnamese. The Pentagon brass have suggested it might be better to pull back, thus upsetting meticulously rigid enemy planning that is characteristic of the North Vietnamese.

Westmoreland assured the Joint Chiefs that he welcomed a showdown with Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the conqueror of Dien Bien Phu, now the enemy commander at Khe Sanh.

Marine officers told me that any defensive position, including Khe Sanh, can be overrun — if enough manpower and firepower are thrown into the battle. However, they promised that the Marines would make the North Vietnamese pay terribly for every foot of ground they take.

Waiting For the Apocalypse

WASHINGTON—Many Americans will be disappointed if there is no apocalypse this year. It has been forecast, promised and talked about for so long that the nation seems to have developed a need for it, the way it used to need, in February, a new baseball season.

"Well, Red, the snipers still have a lot of work to do before the season starts, but I'd say with the big crop of rookie looters we've got in camp this spring we've got a good chance to take it all. No, I hadn't heard that President Johnson was going to throw out the first firebomb, but it's great news, it'll do a lot for the game."

In "the steps of the pentagon" in this month's Harper's magazine, Norman Mailer writes of a "just for apocalypse" oozing from an audience of war protesters. A fine phrase. It expresses the madened need for a really big blow-up, a maniac's outing with Dr. Strangelove that seems to have eaten into the American marrow.

"Okay kids, let's really hear it now for the apocalypse!" It is a rare evening when a search of the TV channels does not find a panel of distinguished firebrands shrouded in crocodile gloom about the imminence of doomsday. The public broadcast laboratory presented a roomful of them Sunday night, educators and students convened to discuss higher education, and the message once again was that everything is doomed.

When one Negro participant

JACK ANDERSON

Meanwhile, our plane was winging toward the airstrip which has become the lifeline of Khe Sanh. Inside our cavernous C-123 the shriek of the twin motors was deafening. Communication was restricted to lip reading and pantomime.

As we neared the mountain stronghold, the grizzled Milonas offered almost inaudible advice about the bunkers where we were to seek shelter. He couldn't give their exact location. As load master, he had always been too occupied disgorging the cargo to take inventory of the human shelters. If the mortar rounds started falling too fast and close, however, he suggested the most convenient refuge might be a drainage pipe alongside the airstrip.

Sgt. John Evans, the crew chief, finally signalled that we were over Khe Sanh. I strained for a glimpse, but the ground was blotted out by a thick, white cloud bank.

Evans swooped his hand in a downward glide to indicate that we were descending. I buckled up my steel-plated flak jacket and clamped on the heavy steel helmet. But no opening appeared in the white vapor that had swallowed us.

Evans rotated his finger in the air; we would circle for awhile. For nearly two hours, we circled over Khe Sanh, watching for a break in the fog. Once we dipped dangerously near the mountaintop level. But Evans formed a circle with his thumb and forefinger — it was ceiling zero.

At last the aircraft commander, Capt. Carvel Hartley, a heavy, hook-nosed man, reached for a cardboard computer. He twirled the dials and concluded that the gas was running low. Back to Da Nang we flew.

The weather forecast for Khe Sanh was heavy overcast for the next three days. It was the kind of weather the enemy likes.

Cpl. Harry Johnson of East Jacksonville, Fla., has hit upon a unique scheme for defusing Viet Cong booby traps around the Quang Tri Marine Base. He has offered the local Vietnamese boys a trade of C-rations for explosives. Result: they have rustled up explosives that the Viet Cong had planted or intended to plant. . . . South Korean Marines, who have turned out to be some of the toughest fighters in Vietnam, are having trouble getting air and artillery support. Radio operators and helicopter pilots were suspicious of the oriental accent of the South Koreans. They feared Viet Cong agents trying to spring a trap. To solve the problem, the Korean and U. S. Marines here have set up gunfire liaison companies. Americans with acceptable accents now accompany the Koreans into action. . . . The press camp at Da Nang was on red alert during my second night there. Intelligence agents had picked up a report that the Viet Cong were planning an attack in the vicinity of the press camp. The only attack came from mosquitoes. . . . My biggest surprise has been the weather. Here in monsoon country it is cool during the day and nippy at night. I had thought South Vietnam was always steaming hot.

mean burn the country down, destroy the universities, wipe out the political system and blow your mind out? You'll have a gas, but remember, if you don't keep those grades up, you won't be able to get into a university worth destroying."

There are a few obvious pleasures in contemplating apocalypse which account for some of its popularity. For one, it makes the blood-curdling, satisfying expression of old-fashioned hate respectable again. When doomsday is just around the corner, the inhibitors of civility can be shaken off.

"I hate you, you filthy giddle-quake!"

"Oh yeah, you smelly shpin-stopper, that's nothing compared to the way I hate you!"

"You can't hate a classmate the way I hate the president!"

"Oh no? You ought to see the way I hate my parents!"

Obviously however, the American passion for apocalypse has deeper roots than this. It is almost as if apocalypses were the last unmentionable vice. Now that sex has been talked to death at the dinner table, something equally exquisitely forbidden as sex used to be must be found to replace it. And so, we edge up on apocalypse, the ultimate nasty thing, behind liberated thinkers, winking and leering to whet our appetites for the commission of really whiz-bang sin.

Everything at last is thinkable and, in the best American tradition, convertible into fun. If the public can anticipate apocalypse with a thrill, it is not surprising that the administration can stomach Vietnam. The Air Force, in fact, seems out of step with the times in refusing—so far—to put its Nukes up.

How To Sell Your House

We now enter the months when sales of houses reach a peak. In 1968 alone, an estimated 2,000,000-2,500,000 Americans will sell their houses and, on average, the prices they will get will reach new historic heights.

Selling your house, and particularly selling at a peak price, won't be a one — two cinch, though. The efforts you, the homeowner, make now — to get qualified advice on the worth of your house, to find a reputable real estate broker, to make appropriate home repairs and improvements — could mean thousands of dollars to you when you actually sell.

Here, then, are key Do's and Don'ts on selling your house, from the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Washington and other sources:

+ +DO consult one or more licensed real estate brokers, or "Realtors" who are members of the NAREB (the association sets strict ethical standards for members, which is a protection for you.) Choose a Realtor or broker who is well informed on the values in your neighborhood, and one with whom you feel you can deal straight-forwardly.

+ +DON'T try to sell the house yourself in order to save broker's commissions. It involves a lot more time, know-how and red tape than you think.

+ +DO ask the Realtor to estimate the value of your house — and if you have any major disagreement on this score, check other brokers (or licensed appraisers) in your area for their opinions as well. But beware of the broker whose price estimate is thousands of dollars above the estimates of other brokers; he may simply be trying to get your listing, without being capable of delivering the buyer at his estimated price later.

+ +DON'T make the mistake of asking a much higher price for your house than it's worth. If you do this, the salesman may lose interest in selling your house and the house may remain unsold for months or years. According to one estimate, if the sale price you set is within five per cent of its actual fair market value you are 10 times more likely to sell it within a reasonable period of time than if you price it 10-15 per cent above the fair market value.

+ +DO invest in minor improvements both inside and outside the house, such as repairing cracks in the plaster, painting, fixing broken tiles, replacing ripped screens, etc. Often $100 spent for such improvements can return you $1,000 in your sale price. Also, keep your lawn and your garden reasonably trim while you're trying to sell your house.

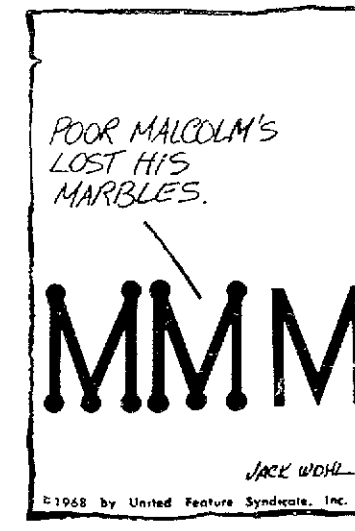

+ +DON'T, though, "overinvest" in, say, new additions to the house, because it may turn out that prospective buyers would have designed such improvements entirely differently and your investment might go down the drain.

+ +DO ask your Realtor to make appointments with you for showing the house to prospective buyers, so that the customer won't have to wade through an accumulation of the week's laundry or an obstacle course of children's toys.

+ +DON'T interfere with the broker and client while they're going through the house; just "sit down and shut up." And DON'T have any music playing during the inspection; your choice of music easily could distract or offend the visitor.

Finally, if today's steep interest rates are a major barrier to a sale, consider acting as the lender yourself by arranging to transfer the existing mortgage on your house to the buyer. Consider, too, extending a second mortgage to help make up the difference in the amount owed you.

(c) N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — The rejection of Adlai Stevenson III by Illinois' boss-ridden Democrats is the latest suggestion that President Johnson is going into the 1968 election as the candidate of a dangerously weakened coalition of state and local parties.

It is not entirely clear why Mayor Richard Daley, the Illinois kingpin who is a major ally of Johnson, turned down Stevenson, who was the most proven vote-getter available, and chose a little-known party regular to run against Everett McKinley Dirksen.

The Republican Senate leader may have bought immunity from strong opposition by supporting a compromise version of Johnson's civil rights bill; or Stevenson may have been turned down only because he refused to give unblinkingly and unquestioning support to the war in Vietnam, not only now but for all time to come; or both.

What is abundantly clear, however, is that the Illinois ticket that Lyndon Johnson now will head next fall is significantly weaker than it might have been. In that major state, where any Republican presidential candidate is likely to run strongly, Johnson will have no local coat-tails to hang on to.

For a personally unpopular President, facing a difficult re-election campaign, that is a serious matter. In 1948, for instance, Harry Truman could poll, in a four-man race, only 49.5 per cent of the total vote cast for president. But Democratic candidates for seats in the House won 53.7 per cent of the votes cast in the congressional election. The two figures are not directly comparable but it is certain that the state and local Democrats who ran ahead of Truman helped pull him back into office.

Similarly, in 1960, when John F. Kennedy was burdened by the religious issue, a strong opponent and an incumbent Republican administration, he was greatly helped by state and local Democratic vote-getters. Those running for the House and the Senate polled 35 per cent of the total congressional vote.

This was of major assistance to Kennedy, who got only 49.7 per cent of the presidential vote. On the other hand, Richard Nixon all but matched Kennedy with 49.5 per cent; although his state and local running mates won only 45 per cent of the congressional vote thus, it might well be said that they dragged Nixon down to defeat.

This is a year when Johnson, like Kennedy and Truman before him, is badly in need of popular local candidates to lean on in the major states. But what is he getting?

In New York, the most highly regarded possibility to run against Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits was Morris Abram, a Jewish southerner with an excellent record of public service; he probably could not have beaten Javits but he might well have assisted the Democratic ticket more than anyone else. But Abram could not get White House backing for his views on Vietnam, although they were satisfactory to Vice President Humphrey.

Stevenson and Abram, theoretically, could run primary campaigns and perhaps win the senatorial nominations in their states. But the White House controls the President's Club, which pre-empted most Democratic campaign money and does it out to state and local candidates only as Lyndon Johnson might permit. Abram never lost sight of that grim fact. And in Stevenson's case, prematurely challenging the power of Mayor Daley might have proven counter-productive indeed, especially for one whose political future is still glittering.

California is another major state where no strong Democratic candidate now is likely to help Johnson by making the Senate race against Republican Rom Kuchel, but where Johnson needs all the support he can get. In fact, if the President should be challenged in that state's Democratic primary by, say, George Wallace, the best available Johnson stand-in is Attorney General Lynch, whose name is scarcely a household word.

For entirely different reasons in still a fourth major state—his own Texas—Johnson will not have the comforting name of either of the leading Democrats, Gov. John Connally Jr., or Sen. Ralph Yarborough, on the ticket as a gubernatorial candidate.

The White House denied that Johnson had been involved in Abram's decision not to run and there is no evidence that the President helped shoot down Stevenson. The fact remains that he is at least permitting Democrats in some of the most vital states to reject the candidates who might help him most.

Recreation Land Owners

Over the past several years I have favored federal and state ownership of recreational lands. It was my thought that while private owners may have the best intentions so far as the public was concerned, there was always the possibility that a change of ownership or a revision in land use could come along to limit public access. This, I felt, could not happen on publicly-owned lands.

Further than this, so far as the Allegheny National Forest was concerned, payments in lieu of taxes was highly favorable to local townships. With some of our more remote townships made up almost entirely of federal lands this was an important consideration.

Then, too, if we were ever to get the promised federal development of recreational facilities along the west bank of the Kinzua Dam, federal ownership of lands in the vicinity of these developments seemed justified.

Yet when the Warren County commissioners took action recently calling for a "second look" at the acquisition of private lands in the reservoir area, I was pleased. Pleased, because in the time since the original resolution of support was enacted by a former board of commissioners changes have taken place. Changes that also deserve consideration if the Kinzua Dam is ultimately to be of most benefit to the public at large.

A most important change has been the attitude of the private landowners in the dam area. A few years ago their interest was centered in growing trees for lumber. Now, however, they are awakening to the recreational values of their lands and tentative plans are being made to produce two paying crops from the same acre of land—timber and recreation.

A few years ago the thought of having to charge for recreational privileges discouraged private landowners from thinking along these lines. However, the government itself broke the ice by instituting charges at their facilities, thus presenting the possibility that private developments could be both practical and profitable. With the average landowner being an astute businessman, the outcome was inevitable.

Add to this the fact that development of much needed federal installations has been slowed by budget restrictions over the past few years and the prospects for private development are even more encouraging. And with the possibility that such private developments could be meeting the needs of the community before federal funds will be available to the job.

One plan of private development that has been under consideration in the dam area is a sub-division along the edge of a privately-owned forest to create a summer home colony. Such a development would add considerably to the tax base of the county, providing a much greater income than would be realized from undeveloped recreational lands. The tools to control the type of development it would be already exist in our zoning laws.

Another change that has taken place just within the past month makes it highly advisable to have a "second look" at the matter of further federal ownership in Warren County. This is a bill recently introduced in Congress, H. R. 15253, by Philip E. Ruppe of Michigan. As yet, I don't have a complete breakdown on the provisions it proposes but just to think of what it could mean gives one the shivers.

It's been no secret over the years that counties hosting the national forests have looked with covetous eyes on the windfalls federal in lieu of taxes payments have provided their townships. Not a nickel of these funds representing 25 per cent of the income from the federal lands, which in the case of the Allegheny National Forest have been exceptional, ever reached the county treasury. But as the counties have never been able to mount a sustained drive to have the original legislation changed, no change has been forthcoming. The funds are paid directly to the townships for school and road purposes.

But now, it seems, the states are trying to cut in. If the Ruppe bill is passed (as I understand

Chief Cracks Down

An aging newspaper clipping tells an interesting story of a former Warren police chief's war on "auto spooners." Chief Martin Wholeben (1919-1928) ordered all policemen to watch for this class of offenders and bring prosecution against them. The item stated that license numbers of seven automobiles found parked on side streets with their lights out and "petting parties" in progress had been reported. "With the approach of summer," the article noted, "a number of persons have begun this practice which is often a source of complaints from indignant residents of various sections of the city." According to the clipping, the majority of complaints came from persons living in the vicinity of the fair grounds.

it all such revenues would be paid to the states. This, as anyone can see, could be disastrous to our more remote townships where most or a lot of their income is from these federal payments. It would be especially foolish for Warren County to encourage federal acquisition in the dam area if in effect we were pushing these tax-paying lands into a position where the revenue from them would be paid to the state.

So all in all, in the light of present circumstances, I favor taking a "second look" at further federal acquisition in the dam area, or at least slowing the action down until it is determined if funds to develop the area will be available in the foreseeable future and the Congressional reaction to the Ruppe proposal takes form.

PARIS (AP) — A French youth of 17 was fined $60 this week for breaking windows and scrawling anti-American slogans concerning the Vietnam war on the American Cathedral in France during a demonstration last June and a woman of 26 was fined $40 as an accomplice scrawler. Together they were ordered to pay $340 more for damages. They were identified as students.

LONDON (AP) — An all-party committee has recommended to Prime Minister Harold Wilson that Britons be given the vote at age 20 instead of 21. It rejected a move by a Labor-Liberal faction to reduce the voting age to 18.

NEW DELHI (AP) — All India Radio, the government monopoly broadcaster, claims that 10 per cent of the more than 500 million Indian people listen to its news bulletins daily.

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government is spending about $1 million building and improving Jerusalem air raid shelters complete with running water and other amenities, the civil defense command announced.

OTTAWA (AP) — Preliminary estimates indicate the United States contracted in Canada last year for $305 million worth of armaments, informed sources reported. The figure represents about $12 million more than the 1966 total. The sources said Canada placed orders in the United States in 1967 for about $290 million worth of armaments, a decrease of about $42.6 million from 1966.

Ted Kennedy Proposes Comprehensive Draft Reform

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposed legislation Wednesday that would effect a comprehensive reform of the draft, including the suspension of deferments for college undergraduates in wartime.

In a half-hour speech on the Senate floor Wednesday explaining the major points of his 150-page bill, Kennedy argued that the Vietnam war had focused attention on the need for draft reform and that the current law was "a patchwork of piecemeal additions and alterations."

"It satisfied no one," he said. "We must rewrite it, and must rethink its underpinnings if we are to have a law which fairly reflects the spirit of our free society."

Kennedy is considered the leading senate advocate of draft reform. Many of the 18 major provisions of his bill would enact changes in the draft along lines proposed by the National Advisory Commission on Selective Service in its report to President Johnson last February.

The first provision of the bill, and one of the most controversial recommendations of the draft commission, would be the creation of a system of random selection or draft lottery. This would replace the present selection process whereby the oldest men are drafted first in order of their birth dates.

In his draft message to Congress last March, President Johnson had announced his intention of creating a draft lottery. But he was at least temporarily prevented from doing so by the southern conservatives who dominate the House armed services committee.

At the urging of the committee chairman, Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., Congress forbade the President in the new draft law passed last summer to change the selection process without its consent.

Kennedy's bill would restore the President's power to create a random selection process. He also urged the White House to submit a specific draft lottery plan to Congress as soon as possible.

Noting that Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate armed services committee, had promised to give such a plan "immediate consideration," Kennedy said he hoped that "we can have some definite action—and action soon—to permit the introduction of a random selection system."

It is understood that if the White House does not propose a specific draft lottery plan soon, Kennedy may himself do so. He outlined a possible draft lottery in his speech Wednesday.

Among other changes in the draft system, Kennedy's bill would also require:

—The drafting of the youngest men, the 19-year-olds, first.

—Establish uniform and mandatory national standards for classifications.

—Prohibit occupational deferments except upon a presidential finding that a particular occupation warranted deferment on a national basis.

—Reorganize the administrative structure of the Selective Service System on a regional and metropolitan area basis.

—Require proportionate representation for all races in the community on each of the nation's 4,084 local draft boards.

—Institute one-year studies on the feasibility of creating an all-volunteer army and a national service corps as an alternative to military duty.

The proposed change on deferments for four-year college students would require that the granting of new deferments be suspended for 12 months whenever the number of combat casualties reached 10 per cent of the number of men drafted over a three-month period. Such a provision, he said, would ensure that "all young men must stand as equals" in wartime.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., also called for the creation of a draft lottery today and Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, co-sponsored Kennedy's bill.

Pre-Castro 'Tiger' Sentenced to Prison

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rolando Masferrer, the dreaded "Tiger" of pre-Castro Cuba, was sentenced to four years in prison Wednesday in connection with a priest's plot to overthrow Haiti's government with a ragtag volunteer army.

Five members of Masferrer's invasion force were given lesser sentences by U.S. District Judge Ted Cabot.

Defense attorneys said all six defendants would appeal.

Barefoot Driving Is Legal in U.S.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — If you want to take your driving test barefoot, go ahead, it's legal.

However, a spokesman for the Colorado Driver Examination Department said the examiner probably would wonder about the driver's mentality.

This information follows a survey by the Rocky Mountain Auto Association that determined barefoot driving is legal in all 50 states.

Proponents of barefoot driving, says the association, claim it can promote safety by making the nerve ends more alert. Others say a loose shoe might get stuck under the brake or engaged in the accelerator.

The defendants—three Cuban exiles, two Haitian exiles and an American—were among 73 men in battle dress nabbed by U.S. agents at a Florida Keys hide-out Jan. 2, 1967. The tiny army, witnesses said in a trial before Judge Cabot last November, was ready to shove off by boat to invade Haiti in order to establish a base to proceed against Fidel Castro.

Masferrer, a senator in pre-Castro Cuba, received three years on a charge of conspiring to invade Haiti and another year on a count of conspiring to export arms to Haiti.

The 50-year-old exile, who had been free on $2,500 recognizance bond, was taken into custody with appeal bond set at $6,000.

Masferrer commanded a private army of some 1,500 persons during the regime of dictator Fulgencio Batista. The dreaded force, called "Los Tigres"—The Tigers—moved against pro-Castro elements. When Batista fell in 1959, Masferrer fled into exile.

Martin Casey, 29-year-old merchant seaman from Miami, was sentenced to nine months on each count with the sentences to run at the same time. Casey's appeal bond was set at $1,000.

The Rev. Jean Baptiste Georges, Roman Catholic priest and former Haitian Cabinet member who conceived the plot, received a 60-day jail term and suspended prison sentences of two years on each count. He was placed on three years probation. According to the alleged plot, Father Georges was to have been made Haitian president replacing Francois Duvalier.

Columbia U. Gives Up Interest in New Filter

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University gave up its half interest in the Strickman cigarette filter Wednesday, saying it had made a "well-intentioned mistake" but was taking no position on the filter's merits.

At the same time, Robert L. Strickman, the inventor, announced a Canadian firm had been licensed to use the filter and would have it on the market by June. The firm—Imperial Tobacco of Canada—confirmed everything but the date, which it said was uncertain.

In Washington, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., said after reading a report on tests of the filter, conducted by Columbia, that it was "not, by any stretch of the imagination, the revolutionary development which Columbia first heralded last July."

"In fact, the filter is not as efficient in removing tar and nicotine as certain filters readily available to cigarette manufacturers, including some filters now in production," said Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee.

A spokesman for Strickman said Magnuson had insufficient information and that the Columbia report had ignored the issue of flavor. He said the Strickman filter takes out as much or more tar and nicotine as the best filters available, but leaves flavor as good or better than the most popular cigarettes.

Columbia announced last July that it would license the filter because it made cigarettes safer and "people are going to smoke anyway." It said it expected to use its anticipated profits of $100 million a year for cancer research.

In announcing its withdrawal, Columbia said it turned over its rights to a charitable foundation set up by Strickman and not affiliated with Columbia.

A spokesman for Strickman said most of the foundation's income eventually will be given to Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons. The original patent owners—Strickman, members of his family and more than 20 other persons—will get a lion's share of the first $25 million, after which it will be split 49 to 51 per cent with the foundation.

RR Accused Of Being Behind Times

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Howard W. Robinson, R-N.Y., said Wednesday the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad was abandoning its passenger services by default by shunning technological advances that could make these services profitable.

He testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing here on the proposed discontinuance of two E.L. trains between Buffalo and Hoboken, N.J.

Robinson and 16 other witnesses spoke against the proposed discontinuance. They said railroads in several countries—namely Sweden, Japan and Germany—have made their passenger operations profitable by introducing high-speed trains.

Railroad officials contend that the two trains, No. 10 and No. 15, averaged 12 passengers in 1967 between any two points along the 400-mile route.

At a hearing in Buffalo Monday, the railroad said the two trains have been "primarily mail trains" but since the Post Office Department had discontinued a Hoboken-Cleveland post office car last April, the remaining agreement to carry mail on the two trains would be discontinued by the post office before May 20.

Also testifying against discontinuance Wednesday were John C. Gridley of Elmira, chairman of the Chemung County Board of Supervisors, and Robert M. Edwards of Binghamton.

Edwards represented a group of parents whose children attend St. Mary's School for the Deaf in Buffalo by commuting daily from Elmira and Binghamton.

Other ICC hearings on the proposals were scheduled for Thursday in Scranton, Pa., and Friday in Hoboken, N.J.

Britain May Have Another Wage Freeze

LONDON (AP) — Britain's biggest unions, powerful backers of the Labor government, rebelled Wednesday against the government's voluntary plan to hold back wage demands to help make devaluation work.

The vote at a special meeting called by the Trades Union Congress seemed to give the Labor government little choice but to legislate another wage freeze, even at the risk of a collision with the unions.

Official sources said action of some sort to hold down wage inflation was almost certain.

The Congress called the conference to enlist support for its own plan to channel wage demands through a central committee. It set a target of average wage raises of 5 per cent—lower than past years but still more than the government has said it was willing to allow in this crucial year.

Blind Soldier Turns Down Steak

CHICAGO (AP) — A Trenton, Tenn., soldier ate a special lunch of two hamburgers aboard an airliner Wednesday while the other passengers had steak.

Sp. 4 James Mitchell, 20, made the request for the hamburgers. Mitchell was blinded in Vietnam fighting and has not learned to cut steak by himself.

His parents, who traveled with the soldier, said he preferred the hamburgers which he could eat by himself rather than depend on someone to help him.

Mitchell was en route to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C., where he will be treated and trained in daily activities.

"If I could see," Mitchell said, "I'd go back." He spent nine months in Vietnam before he was wounded in fighting in Chou Lai. Mitchell worked as a mechanic in a tractor plant in Trenton before he entered the Army.

He said he is uncertain what he will do when he is discharged, but he is confident the Army will "do a good job" training him for something.

A showdown may come in the House of Commons after Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins presents the annual budget March 19. He has warned he will tax away excess wage increases.

The government devalued the pound from $2.80 to $2.40 Nov. 18. The major aim was to increase exports by making them cheaper, and thus reduce the balance of payments deficit.

Wig Wearers in No Danger Of Going Up in Flames

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Wig wearers can apparently relax. Neither government officials nor safety experts seem to think that such women are in any special danger of having their hairdos go up in flames.

The officials were asked to comment after a series of what are now being called "burn-ins"—demonstrations during which a variety of wigs were burned. Murray Kaye, an East Side beauty salon operator, who calls himself "The Ralph Nader of the Beauty Industry," ignited the issue when he purported to show that synthetic hair wigs were fire hazards while human wigs were not.

His "burn-in" prompted counter-demonstrations by Bishop Industries, manufacturers of man-made wigs, and the Union Carbide Corporation, makers of dynel, a fiber used in the synthetic hair industry. Their position was that synthetic hair was safer than real.

"Those (burn-ins) were just not good control tests," a Federal Trade Commission spokesman said, noting that his agency had sent an observer to the first and the last of the demonstrations.

"They were strictly for publicity, and we had no business being there," he said. "We don't know what—if anything—was put on those wigs. They could have been treated with a highly flammable shellac, or a flameproof liquid."

"Even if a wig could be proven fireproof," he added, "that doesn't mean it would stay that way after it was cleaned for the first time. And a high flash flame doesn't mean anything either. A substance has to really burn to be dangerous—not just flame up."

At present, all wigs were exempt from the federal flammable fabrics act, which is limited strictly to wearing apparel. Consequently, wigs are not required by law to carry "non-inflammable" labels. Some do, but those that don't are not necessarily unsafe.

The FTC spokesman said that if wigs were included in a new flammable fabrics act now under consideration by the department of commerce, the FTC would be able to test them and—if they were found to be hazardous—take them off the market.

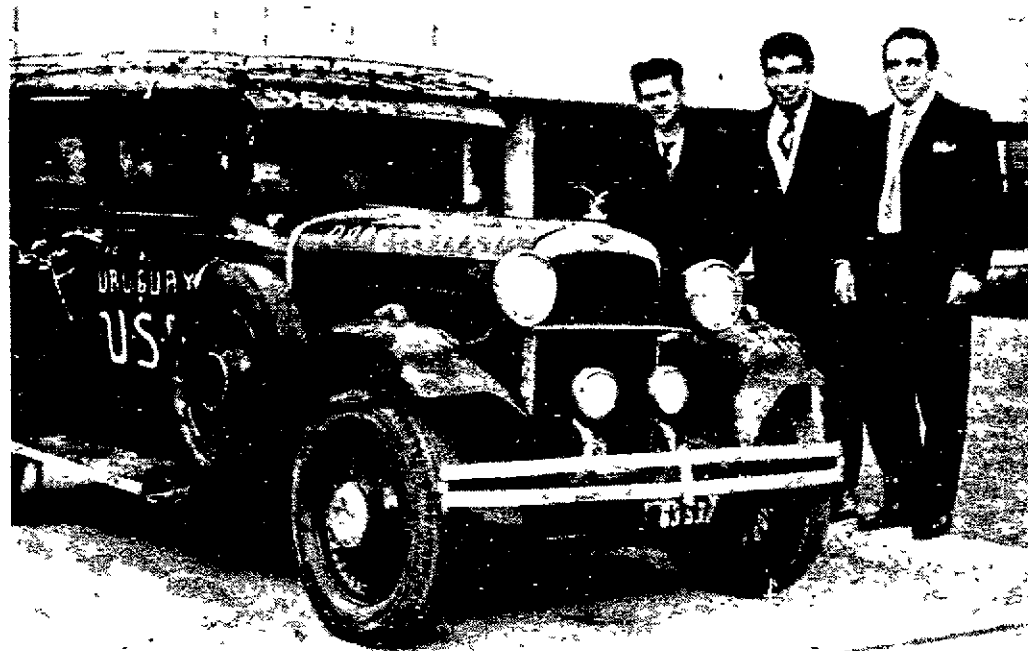

So far most of the country's consumer and safety groups have not tested wigs.

Eleanor Pollock, public relations adviser to Betty Furness, President Johnson's special assistant on consumer affairs, said: "We've said and done nothing, because we haven't even had one letter complaining about wigs."

Sarah Miles of the National Safety Council in Chicago said the council's home division had tested the reaction of fibers to fire and found that modacrylics—a group of man-made fibers that includes dynel—burn only when in contact with flame.

"Once the ignition source is removed," Miss Miles added, "they (modacrylics) are self-extinguishing."

Neither the bureau of fire prevention of the New York City fire department nor the New York State fire insurance board has reported any incidents of wigs catching fire. Nor have there been any reports of wig holocausts in other parts of the country.

VINTAGE CAR

Three travellers from Uruguay—Nicholas Wannon, Raul Scorza and Oscar Fernandez—drove 6,000 miles to Detroit in this 1932 Dodge sedan, hoping the feat would land jobs for them in the Motor City. Scorza, the car's owner, said he bought the car 10 years ago for 13,000 Uruguayan pesos ($750 American) and only recently was offered between 150,000 to 200,000 pesos (about $1,000) for it.

Pharmaceutical Firms Fined For Controlling Antibiotics

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Three major pharmaceutical companies—American Cyanamid Company, Bristol-Myers Company and Chas. Pfizer & Co.—were each fined $150,000 Wednesday for conspiring to control the manufacture, sale and distribution of antibiotics.

Federal Judge Marvin E. Frankel gave the three companies the maximum fine, $150,000, on each of three counts. The companies were convicted last Dec. 29 after a jury trial that lasted 10 weeks. Judge Frankel presided at that trial.

Payment of the fines were stayed pending appeals by each of the companies.

The judge's sentence was consistent with that asked by Harry G. Sklarsky, the federal government's chief attorney in the case. Citing sales by the three companies of more than $1 billion in broad spectrum antibiotics in the period from 1953 to 1961, Sklarsky declared: "The maximum (fine) here is really minor, from the point of view of the size of the companies."

In calling for the maximum fine, Sklarsky also referred to the "scope of the conspiracy and the price fixing impact on the public."

Attorneys for the companies told the judge they felt Sklarsky's characterization of the case contained "a considerable amount of overstatement."

Judge Frankel disagreed, saying: "In light of the nature of the offense the maximum (fine) is appropriate here and I will impose it."

Wednesday's action represented, in effect, chapter three in what promises to become a long confrontation between the federal, state and municipal governments and the nation's multi-billion-dollar drug industry.

Chapter one was completed in 1961 when the federal government obtained an indictment of the three firms sentenced today. They were charged with fixing of artificially high prices and monopolizing the manufacture, distribution and sale of broad spectrum antibiotics from 1953 to 1961.

The second was completed last Dec. 29 when a jury returned a guilty verdict against American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers and Chas. Pfizer.

Still to be decided, however, are about 20 civil suits that have been filed so far against the same three firms by various states, municipalities and other interests. These suits, under provisions of the Sher-

Confidence Jeopardized By Upset Vote

OTTAWA (AP)— Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson won back Wednesday the confidence in his Liberal government that was jeopardized by an upset vote in the House of Commons while he was away on a Caribbean holiday.

With all Liberal MPs present, the House voted 133 to 119 in favor of the confidence measure introduced by the 70-year-old prime minister. His government had been defeated 84 to 82 on a tax bill Feb. 19.

Pearson plans to retire any way in the spring, but for his party Wednesday's vote was a crucial victory. The Liberals have still to choose a successor to Pearson and a confidence defeat, bringing with it new elections, would have badly shaken the party.

Wednesday's solid turnout of Liberals contrasted to the Feb. 19 tax vote that caught 47 of them absent. Pearson flew home the next day and charged that there had been trickery in the circumstances of the vote.

The tax bill, which had been approved in principle on a second reading, went down to defeat when Conservatives, sensing that the Liberals were caught short-handed, responded "now!" when a deputy speaker asked what time a final vote should be taken.

The 129 Liberal MPs backing the confidence measure Wednesday were supported by Real Caouette and his seven Creditiste party followers and by an independent. The Liberals have been governing from a minority position, requiring support from other parties to stay in power.

The Liberals will hold a leadership conference April 4-6 to choose Pearson's successor. Pearson last December announced his plans to retire, noting that he had been in public life for 40 years. He has been prime minister since 1963. He won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1957 for helping bring temporary quiet to the Middle East.

Push Beer Sales in Groceries

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— An organization composed of most food chains and many individual food stores in the state have started a drive to permit beer sales in grocery stores.

The group is known as the Food and Beverage Markets Research Inc., of suburban Bala, and its president is Dean W. Roach of Radnor.

Roach said Wednesday the organization represents most food chains and 12,000 individual merchants with total annual sales of $2 billion and 250,000 employees.

Roach said the organization wants to change Pennsylvania's "archaic" liquor laws, which he indicated the association would appeal to the General Assembly.

He said beer is now sold in 46 states and 70 per cent of beer sold in the United States is through food stores.

Pennsylvanians "pay more for beer than do consumers anywhere else in the nation by as much as 40 per cent," he said.

The Apennine Mountains are in Italy.

Linked to the Heart

• Whence comes that feeling of ecstasy which causes young women to swoon or at least flutter their eye lids coyly when a diamond engagement ring is slipped for the first time upon the third finger, left hand?

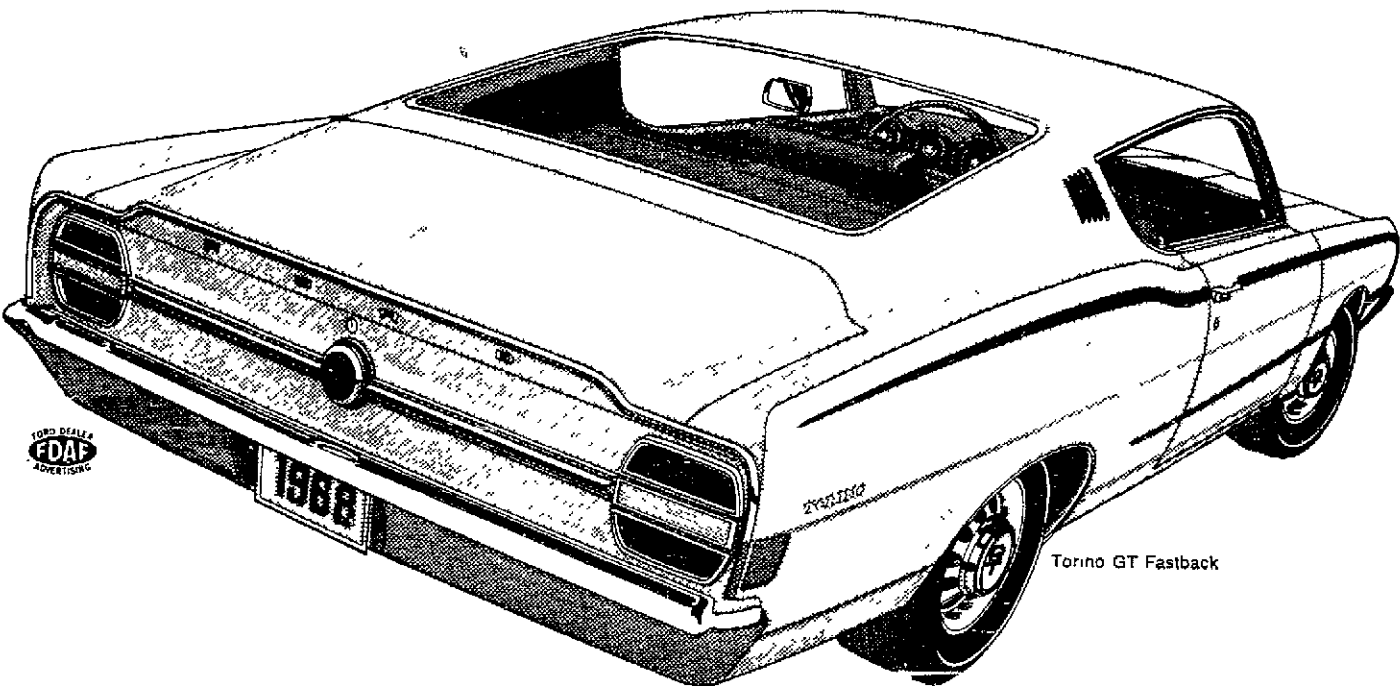

"From the heart" any woman of feeling and sensitivity will instantly respond. True true, but why should enmeshment of this third finger, left hand cause heart palpitations?

To any student of mythology the answer is patently simple. An artery the Arteries of Love connects that finger directly with the heart all medical proof to the contrary. •••

NORTH WARREN, PA.

Movin' On

It's with some regret that we publicly announce that we're leaving Warren. We've accepted the position of sports editor of the Lock Haven Express starting April 1. That gives us a little over a month to recount some memorable moments during our past three years of covering athletic events in this area, and a few other incidents that we'd just as soon forget.

There are two main reasons for the decision to change. An important one is that the Express is an afternoon newspaper (as was the Times-Mirror, where we got our start). Basically, that means working mornings to meet a 12:30 p.m. deadline instead of working nights to meet a 12:30 a.m. deadline here.

It also means afternoons off and the same for evenings, except for the nights when there are events to cover, or a special feature to be completed.

Also, no Sundays.

The answer to the question, "Why Lock Haven?" is the second major reason for leaving.

Lock Haven is a rural community of about 12,000 population on the banks of the Susquehanna River. In many ways, it's very similar to Warren.

Its boundaries include Lock Haven State College, a coed institution of 1,600 students on a hillside campus.

It's in the heart of wrestling country.

Despite its size, the college boasts of a wrestling team that has earned a reputation as a national powerhouse. Currently coached by Gray Simons, three-time NCAA champion, Lock Haven is the number one-ranked NAIA team and has enjoyed a rating among the Top Ten in the NCAA poll. Now 11-0, the Bald Eagles have won 31 of their last 32 matches, dating back to 1965, and meet Oklahoma State, the number one major college team in the country, on March 18.

Lock Haven State has won NAIA team titles in 1961, 1963, 1966 and 1967. They have had 21 individual NAIA champions, more than any other competing college. LHSC wrestlers have won 89 individual Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Conference titles and have captured the team title 13 times in the 24-year history of the PSCAC Tournament.

In addition to Simons, other former Lock Haven grapplers who are known here include Warren's Bob Benson, now head coach at Corry, and "Biff" Walizer, Titusville's coach.

Nor does wrestling fame stop at the college. Lock Haven High has had nine PIAA State Champions, including four-time winner Mike Johnson. Larry Rippey, who won PIAA titles in 1966 and 1967, is a member of the Lock Haven State College freshman mat team.

Stan "Speed" Glossner, who has officiated many Dragon matches, is a former LHHS wrestling star.

It's also football country. Both the high school and the college produce consistently good grid teams. Bald Eagle Nittany High School, just four miles from the center of Lock Haven, has been undefeated on the gridiron for three years.

Basketball enjoys less popularity in the area than football or wrestling, but the Lock Haven High cagers have compiled a regular season record of 22-1 this year. We'll have to report on track and field after we've been down there a while this spring.

As you can see, it's a paradise for a sports fan, or for a sports writer. They take their athletics, especially wrestling, very seriously there.

It's also a challenge for us to accept the responsibility of reporting sports in that area. We're looking forward to it.

We mentioned above that we regret leaving this area. Naturally, since this is our home, we have many family and personal ties here.

We have also enjoyed our association with the athletes, coaches and all others associated with athletics in this area. We don't believe we'll ever find better boys than represent the five high schools in the county.

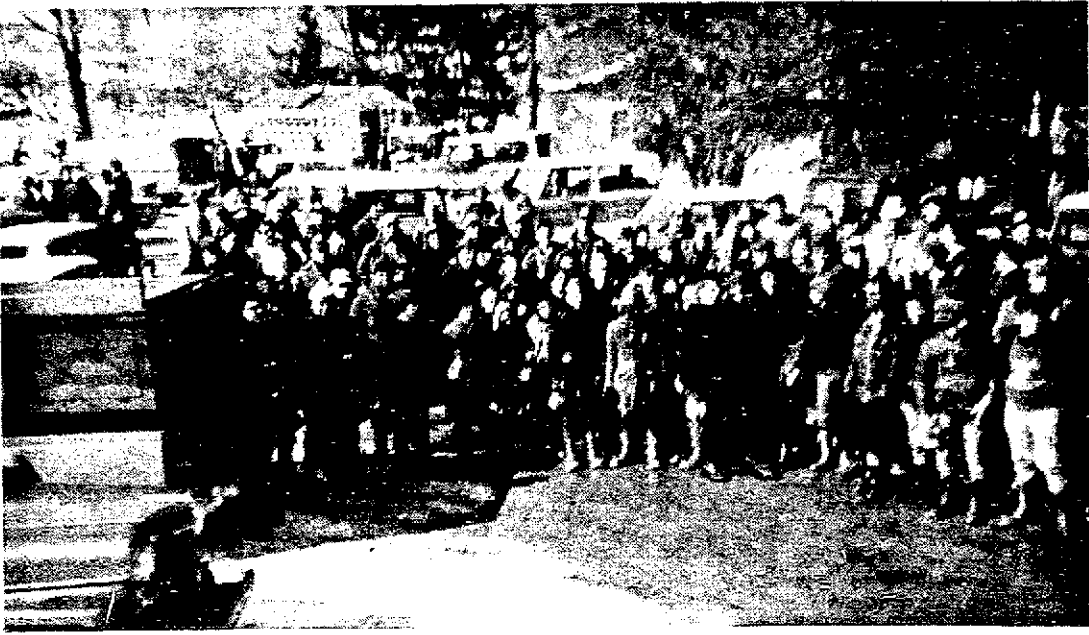

And the fans can't be any more rabid than a few we know right here in town.

The games, events and conversations that stick in our memory will be covered in a later column. Depending on our mood at the time, we may also air a few gripes.

STEELE SHAVINGS—Spent last Saturday afternoon at the District X mat tourney with John Ganley, former TMO scribe and now sports editor of the Greenville Record Argus. A former basketball fan, John is now in "wrestling country" and he's seen the light!

Dragon coaches Lee Chew, George Knopick and Jack Creek are presently preparing the junior high grapplers for the Junior AAU tourney at DuBois. Although some junior varsity matmen qualify, the squad will be made up of Beatty wrestlers who have worked all season without interscholastic competition. A just decision from our point of view.

Bill Shaffer, former WAHS track and cross country standout, was recently cited as one of the student-athletes at the University of Wisconsin to achieve a "B" (3.00) or better grade point average for the first semester.

KINZUA COUNTRY CONVERSATIONISTS
This group of men and machines was part of the army that helped with the stocking of deer and turkey feeders under the sponsorship of the Ludlow Sportsmen's Club on Saturday. Over 400 members of the club carted nearly 15 tons of corn into the forest areas of four counties to help get game through the winter. The club has grown from 70 members to over 650 in three years. See story below. (Photo by Bob Holmes)

OVER 400 STOCK TURKEY, DEER FEEDERS
Ludlow Sportsmen Club's Project Outgrowing Town

By ROBERT L. HOLMES
LUDLOW — Have you ever heard of a sportsmen's club whose membership exceeded the number of inhabitants in its own town?

If your answer is "no," you haven't heard about the Ludlow Sportsmen's Club.

The last time heads were counted in Ludlow, the "heart of Kinzua Country," the number barely exceeded the 600 mark. With membership applications still rolling in, the roll of the Ludlow Club has already exceeded 650 and there are expectations that it will top the 700 mark.

The success story of the Ludlow Sportsmen's Club started a short three years ago when 70 members decided to start a feeding program for wild turkey and deer during the rough winter months. About one dozen feeders were built that first year and placed in the area around Ludlow. Last year, under the able leadership of Ed Peterson of Kane, 32 feeders were set out over a much larger territory with 280 members participating in 10 below-zero weather.

This year over 50 feeders

'New' Knicks Taking Aim on Third Place

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, these are not the same New York Knickerbockers.

Going into this National Basketball Association season, the Knicks had finished fourth in the Eastern Division eight straight times, and that meant the cellar until last season when a fifth team was added.

But the current New York team has dead aim on third, which would be the highest Knick finish since 1958-59, and has a good chance to finish above the .500 mark for the first time since that same season.

These Knicks have won 21 of their last 32 games.

These Knicks play defense, hustle and, more often than not, are exciting even when they lose.

"No secrets," says Red Holzman, who took over as coach 32 games ago. "They've been playing real well together. No secrets, just work."

And the club has been working at both ends of the court, even when things aren't going well.

Take Tuesday night's 108-102 loss to St. Louis. The Knicks trailed by 17 points at halftime but came back to tie it 97-97 before losing.

"We were aware it took them a half to get 17 ahead and we knew we still had a half," center Walt Bellamy said after the game.

"Over-all, everyone is playing together, and the defense has improved," says Bellamy.

"Generally, we just help out more on defense," says All-Star forward Willis Reed. "We try to keep a man out of his range. Everybody is helping out on the court."

The Knicks' brass also did some helping off the court, and it now is paying dividends. They signed rookies Walt Frazier of Southern Illinois, Phil Jackson of North Dakota University and Bill Bradley, the Rhodes Scholar from Princeton.

These three are real diamonds in the rough, especially for a club that hasn't done too well in the rookie market in the last 10 years. And the diamonds are getting smoother with each game.

Ed Maynard County Hot Stove Prexy

Ed Maynard of Youngsville was elected president of the Upper Allegheny Valley Hot Stove League for 1968-69 at a meeting held Tuesday night at the Meadowbrook Dairy in Warren.

Others named to serve the county loop during the coming season were Ray Saunders, Sugar Grove, vice president and candy sales chairman; Jim Manelick, Youngsville, secretary; Bill Sandberg, Youngsville, treasurer; Bert Lohres, Russell, equipment chairman, and Melvin Galbraith, Irvine, publicity chairman.

Community chairmen will be as follows: Russell—Hank Passinger, Sheffield—Gerald Newburgh, Clarendon—Bill Baker, Pittsfield—Max Smith (assistant chairman), Grand Valley—Bob Graham, Sugar Grove—Ray Saunders, Tidioute—Herman Knight, Youngsville—Steve Wood (co-chairman).

Pittsfield is looking for a permanent chairman and Youngsville needs another co-chairman.

The next meeting of the UAVL is slated for Monday, March 11 at 7:30 p.m., at the Meadowbrook Dairy building.

Market St. Defeats Home St. in Gra-Y

Market Street outlasted Home Street in Gra-Y Basketball League play yesterday, 38-27. The win left Market at 2-1 in second half loop action.

Al Torrance was high for the winners with 13 points, Willie LeMeur scored 11 and Tom Gay had 10.

For Home, Robbie Simonsen took game-high honors with 16 points and Tom Kottraba threw in 10.

Archery Deer Kill Reported by State

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Game Commission reported Wednesday archers killed a record 3,251 deer in Pennsylvania during the 1967-68 season.

The previous archery record, set last year, was 2,337.

The commission said Potter County was the leader, with 405 whitetail harvested; Forest County was second, with 215, and Clinton County, third with 142.

Blackbirds Retain Lead On Small College Ballot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Long Island University maintained a commanding lead in The Associated Press' small college basketball poll Wednesday. This week's poll is the next-to-last of the season.

Two among the top five clubs, third-ranked Pan American and Southwestern Louisiana, No. 4 already have completed their regular campaigns.

LIU, second-ranked Kentucky Wesleyan and fifth-rated Illinois State finish Saturday. The Blackbirds take on NIT-bound Duquesne, a major opponent. Kentucky Wesleyan meets Tennessee at Martin and Illinois State plays Wayne State.

The Blackbirds collected eight first-place votes and 152 points in the balloting by a regional panel of 17 sports writers and broadcasters based on games through last Saturday.

Will Chamberlain, the 76ers' player representative, said Wednesday he will consult the counsel of the Players Association to determine the legal status. Asked if player resentment might result in a refusal to play, Chamberlain said, "It just might. But they might have us over a barrier legally. I really do not know. I want to check it out legally."

The NBA owners increased the first round playoffs to seven games. Previously the first round was a best of five series. The money in the playoff pool also was boosted, but someone figured that it would come to $208 a man for each extra game. The players don't think this is enough.

"It doesn't seem fair," Chamberlain said. "I don't understand how the owners can make additions in games after contracts are signed. If they want to add games, they should do it in the middle of the summer or before the guys have signed their contracts."

Chamberlain also said the players are opposed to any additions to the schedule next year to accompany an expanded league.

Tim Wood Captures World Skating Lead

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Tim Wood, America's teenage figure skating star, came through with a brilliant performance in the final two compulsory figures of the men's world championships Wednesday and took the lead from the defending titleholder, Emmerich Danzer of Austria.

The 19-year-old student from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., an Olympic silver medalist, was given the majority of highest placings by the judges in the all-important ordinals. Wood had 13.0 ordinals and Danzer 16.0.

However, Danzer is actually leading in points after the six compulsory figures with 1,138.2 to Wood's 1,136.9.

The compulsories amount to 60 per cent of the competition while the free skating, which will be held Friday, count for 40 per cent.

"It's a very small margin," Wood said after all but wiping out the 10-point lead the Austrian had built up Tuesday. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens Friday." Danzer is rated the superior free skater.

Wood clearly dominated the final two figures. "I was lined up beautifully at the start," he said. "I didn't get quite enough glide at the start of the last figure. But on the whole it went very well and I had the feeling that I had taken the lead after it was over."

Danzer threw up his hands in relief after the compulsories were completed and said, "At last it is over. It wasn't so bad after all. I feel quite confident."

Patrick Pera of France held onto third place with 20.0 ordinals and 1,093.1 points.

Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., a bronze medal winner at the Innsbruck Olympic Games in 1964, is fourth with 34.5 ordinals and 1,083.1 points while Gary Visconti of Detroit is fifth with 48.5 ordinals and 1,053.1 points.

The "long arm of the law" reaches out into the county this weekend on a pair of games for the Warren Lawmen basketball team.

On Friday night, the Lawmen play the Eisenhower High faculty in the Ike gym under the sponsorship of the Sports Boosters. Saturday, the Tidioute Lions provide the opposition on the Tidioute High court. Both games start at 8 p.m. and tickets will be on sale at the door.

Nino Confident For Fight with Griffith

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — His hair is shorter and some of the old dash seems to be gone, but Nino Benvenuti heads into the final stages of his training claiming to be more relaxed and confident of dethroning middleweight champion Emile Griffith Monday night.

"I am the challenger again," said the tall, handsome Italian Wednesday at his training camp here. "It may be surprising, but I feel better as a challenger than I did as the champion."

"Maybe it's because I have to prove myself again. I know I am in better condition now than I was for the second fight last September. That is why I am relaxed, I am ready and it will be up to me."

"I was not at my best the last time. I was overconfident. There were many little things that bothered me. This time no. My legs are better and I think the whole story is in the legs. If I can do the things that I want to do, and my legs are good, then it doesn't matter what Griffith does. Even if he tries to butt again it will not matter because I will be able to prevent that."

Benvenuti and his handlers charged that Griffith's butts and elbows damaged his ribs early in the second fight at New York's Shea Stadium last Sept. 29 when the New Yorker regained the title on a 15-round decision. Benvenuti took the crown from a sluggish Griffith by decision on April 17 at the old Madison Square Garden.

The 5-foot-11 Italian dominated the first fight, scoring with a variety of punches. In the return, Griffith was the boss. The muscular 5-7 1/2 Emile piled up a big lead with stinging jabs and body punches.

Benvenuti said his ribs are fine now. He has taken some good shots to the body.

Bruins Say Studies Come First

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All-American Lew Alcindor and two of his UCLA basketball teammates reiterated Wednesday that academic problems prompted their rejection of an invitation to try out for the 1968 U.S. Olympic team.

Speaking for the trio, Alcindor, Mike Warren and Lucius Allen, Athletic Director J.D. Morgan said in effect that the decision was not related to a proposed Negro boycott of the Olympics.

"School is still a big thing with me," Alcindor said. "And I may have to work this summer, too."

The same decision for the same reason was advanced in behalf of Bill Hewitt of the University of Southern California, also a Negro, by USC Athletic Director Jess Hill.

All four had been invited by the NCAA to participate in the Olympic trials April 4-5-6 at Albuquerque, N.M. Their rejection became known when their names did not appear on the roster of 48 selected for the trials.

Questionnaires had been sent to the schools involved to ascertain which players wanted to try for the team for the Olympic games in Mexico City next October.

"Each and every boy came to see me individually after I had received the NCAA questionnaires and rejected the invitation because of the academic interruptions involved," Morgan said.

Sisk, Stargell, Hit by Balls, But Both Okay

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Tom Sisk and Willie Stargell were hit by baseballs Wednesday during the Pittsburgh Pirates' spring training workouts, but both appeared to be alright.

Sisk was hit on the left leg by a line drive from the bat of Al Oliver while the young left-hander was pitching batting practice. He received a bruise and some abrasions.

Stargell, an outfielder and first baseman, was hit on the head by a Luke Walker pitch. Stargell was wearing his helmet, though, and returned to practice after being examined by the trainer.

The team took a motivational test administered by San Jose State College psychologist Dr. Tom Tutko. General Manager Joe L. Brown said the test is intended to help club officials understand the players better.

Manager Larry Shepard set the first intersquad game for Sunday.

Yank Holds Out For 'Tax-Free'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Shortstop Ruben Amaro, the New York Yankees' only holdout, is seeking a tax-free contract, it was disclosed Wednesday by General Manager Lee MacPhail.

Amaro hit .223 in 130 games last season.

Baseball Players Agree To Eckert as Last Word

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The commissioner of baseball was accepted by the Major League Players' Association Wednesday as the final authority for a two-year period in settling any disputes which may arise between the players and the 20 major league clubs.

At a day-long meeting in Miami, the player representatives also ratified and signed a number of measures agreed upon with the owners a week ago in New York.

The association also agreed to a joint study involving "possible alternatives to the reserve clause" and a joint study on "the length of the championship season."

The study of the reserve clause, which presently binds a player to the club with which he is under contract, is to be completed prior to Dec. 31, 1969—the termination date of the preliminary agreement ratified Wednesday.

The study of the length of the season is to be finished prior to the drawing up of the preliminary schedules for 1969.

Acceptance of the commissioner, now William D. Eckert, to serve as the adjudicator in player-management disputes followed earlier disagreement. The players' association previously questioned his role as an impartial judge, since the commissioner is selected by the owners without a player voice.

The measures ratified at the meeting included:

—An increase in the minimum salary to $10,000, a boost of $3,000 over the $7,000 which had existed for 11 years.

—A reduction in the allowable salary cut from 25 per cent to 20 per cent of the previous year's contract.

—A $3 hike to $15 in the players' daily regular season meal allowance, an increase from $8 to $12 for daily spring training meals and a boost of miscellaneous spring training disbursements from $25 to $40 a week.

—Adoption of a set of scheduling regulations for the 1968-69 seasons, aimed at reducing some of the more unreasonable travel demands on the players.

—Improvements in the uniform players' contract provisions to the effect that club management may not unilaterally change any of those provisions during the term of the two-year agreement and that any proposed changes thereafter must be subject to negotiations with the players' association.

Tarheels Upset By S. Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — South Carolina pulled its second big upset in less than a week Wednesday night, handing third-ranked North Carolina an 87-86 basketball defeat.

It was the Tar Heels' second loss of the season and their first in Atlantic Coast Conference play. Despite the defeat, North Carolina held on to its top ranking in the conference.

Led by Bob Cremins, who poured in 23 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

Birds Drop First Game

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Long Island University and St. Peter's College were added to the National Invitation Basketball Tournament Wednesday night, then the Blackbirds, top-ranked in the AP small college poll, promptly lost their first game of the season, 70-59.

The announcement was made at halftime of the LIU-St. Peter's game by Johnny Bach, chairman of the NIT selection committee and coach of Fordham University.

There had been much speculation that only the winner of the game would get an NIT bid. LIU took a 20-0 record into Wednesday's game and St. Peter's, the highest scoring team in the country, was 19-2.

Previously invited to the NIT, the nation's oldest postseason basketball tournament, were Army, Oklahoma City, Notre Dame, Fordham and Duquesne.

Sheffield Cops Sweep over Warren Cagers

The Sheffield Varsity Club basketball team defeated the Warren Varsity Club cagers Tuesday in a game played at WAHS, 47-41.

The Wolverine lettermen outscored Warren 17-3 in the third period to break open a close game, then held off a Dragon rally in the final stanza to win. Ray Morrison led the Wolverines with nine points and Conrad Grubbs tallied eight as ten Sheffield cagers broke into the scoring column.

Nine points by Pat Johnston was high for Warren and Bob Morelli tallied six. Eleven Dragons scored.

In a preliminary contest, the SIS cheerleaders ripped Warren's yell-gals, 39-18, despite a 15-point performance by Dragon captain Linda Loomis. Karen Trubie was high for the Sheffield girls with 14 and Diane Leseman poured in 12. Linda Hofer, with three points, was the only other Warren cheerleader to score.

Linescore of the Varsity Club game:

Sheffield	14	6	17	10	47

BC Routs Duquesne, 5 Technicals Called

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Dukiet, Terry Driscoll, and Steve Kelleher sparked a 56-point first half that carried fast-breaking Boston College over Duquesne 104-88 Wednesday night in a game lived by a second-half fight that resulted in five technical fouls.

Duquesne's Moe Barr and Driscoll squared off under the Dukes' basket with 7:44 to go. Both were ejected from the game.

Before play could be restored, Gerry Friel, Boston College's assistant coach, was on the court arguing with officials Eddie Plank and Don Neff. They settled the dispute by charging the Eagles with three technical fouls and Duquesne with two.

The NCAA tournament-bound Eagles, 16-7, scored 11 straight points in less than 90 seconds to wipe out Duquesne's last lead of the game and were never in any trouble, as they coasted to their fifth straight victory.

Jack Kvancz paced BC with 26 points, Dukiet scored 22, Billy Evans 13 and Steve Adel, man 10. Duquesne's Ron Guziak captured game scoring honors with 28, while Bill Zopi scored 19, Barr 13 and Phil Washington and Rich Carlberg 10 each.

NIT-bound Duquesne, 17-5, dominated the first couple of minutes and led by as many as four points. But Dukiet's layup at the end of a fast break wiped out the Dukes' last edge at the 4:10 mark and put BC in front 12-11.

Kelleher then scored seven straight points in 57 seconds, and Driscoll hit a jumper from the side to give Boston College a 21-11 lead after 5:37. Duquesne never got closer than eight points after that and trailed at halftime 56-33.

Boston College's biggest lead was 24 points just before the half.

Farrell Shades 'Quippa, 52-51

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Chapman converted a three-point play late in the fourth quarter Wednesday and gave Farrell a lead it never relinquished on its way to a 52-51 victory over Aliquippa and the WPIAL's Section 3 Class A title.

Aliquippa was leading 44-42 with 3:08 remaining when Chapman was fouled by Dwight Kenner.

In other action at the Pitt Field House, California earned the semifinals of the District 7 Class B tournament with a 64-50 triumph over Knoch. Marty Foster paced the winners with 19 points.

Dave Johnson was high man for Farrell with 18 points. Jesse Stewart scored 16 points for Aliquippa.

State GOP Leaders Willing For Public Hearing on Tabor

HARRISBURG (AP) — Senate Republican leaders said Wednesday they would be willing to honor a Democratic request to hold a public hearing on the nomination of John K. Tabor as Gov. Shafer's new labor secretary.

Senate Minority Leader Ernest P. Kline, D-Beaver, has suggested that the Senate Executive Nominations Committee hold a hearing to determine what restriction the federal Hatch Act would place on Tabor's political activities in the post.

Kline said Wednesday he intended to bring the matter up in his caucus when the General Assembly reconvenes next week.

Both Senate President Pro Tempore Robert D. Fleming, R-Allegheny, and Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup, R-Bedford, said they would have no objection to a hearing if the Democrats desired one.

"I'd like to move Mr. Tabor's nomination ready," Stroup commented. "But if Sen. Kline would like a hearing, that's his privilege."

At least six Democrats must join the 27 Senate Republicans to provide the two-thirds vote necessary for Tabor's confirmation.

Tabor was selected by Shafer last week to replace William J. Hart in the $25,000 cabinet post. Hart resigned effective Friday.

Tabor, who was elected to the $32,500 position of secretary of internal affairs in 1966, is to serve as acting secretary of labor pending his confirmation. He then is to revert to acting secretary of internal affairs.

"It's always been my policy to respect the governor's choice in selecting his cabinet," Kline said.

"But I would recommend that the committee conduct a public hearing to determine whether the Hatch Act precludes any political activity by Mr. Tabor in that office," he continued.

The Hatch Act bars politicking by any individual who administers federal funds. The Labor and Industry Department will receive $69,014,584 in federal money this fiscal year.

Noting that a 1962 Illinois court case held that federal funds could be withheld from the state's Conservation Department unless its director ceased his political activity, Kline commented:

"I think this point should be clarified in Pennsylvania."

Tabor's run for internal affairs was his first bid for elective office — a post that subsequently was abolished by a constitutional amendment adopted last May.

Both Tabor and the Shafer administration have said they expect to have the department's four remaining functions transferred to other state agencies by the end of the year at the latest.

Tabor is regarded as one of the state Republican Party's leading political personalities. He figured in much speculation over the GOP's endorsement for the U. S. Senate this year before bowing out of the competition.

The secretary declined to speculate on either the prospect of a hearing on his appointment or his political future, contending such a discussion would be improper at this point.

"I will say this," he added, "I regard the labor secretary's office as a very, very challenging job and I intend to give it every ounce of energy I have."

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One out of every 20 patients among the 5,000 now at the overcrowded Philadelphia State Hospital at Byberry belong in prison.

"So why aren't they in jail?" asks the hospital's harassed director, Dr. Daniel Blain. "We just aren't equipped to handle them here."

Dr. Blain insists he is trying hard to get the court-committed patients moved somewhere else, so his staff can go about the chief business of treating the mentally ill.

"We're supposed to keep them under constant supervision and away from other patients," says Dr. Blain. "This prohibits Byberry from giving these people more than a very limited amount of help."

"We aren't geared to run a prison, so why not put them in a prison?"

Dr. Blain, however, wants the legislature to investigate—and do something, like providing money for more staff help, new buildings, and improved, necessary equipment.

Despite his "many problems" Dr. Blain in 17 months has worked hard to improve treatment—and get patients back to their homes and families.

The average stay today at Byberry—biggest of its type in Pennsylvania—is about 12 weeks. The hospital now serves about 5,000 out-patients. These soon will be transferred to out-clinic departments in about a dozen private hospitals with the federal and state governments paying the treatment tab.

Con Con OK's Tax Exemption Proposal, Talks Court Reform

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Constitutional Convention, rushing to finish on time, gave final approval Wednesday to a tax exemption proposal, then scheduled a late night session to complete action on a court reform plan.

Some delegates, disturbed because the work schedule would interfere with a $7.50-a-ticket dinner-dance, objected to meeting at 11 p. m. to consider the hotly contested judiciary proposal.

Gov. Raymond J. Broderick, convention president, insisted that it was necessary to finish consideration of the judiciary proposal Wednesday night if the convention is to meet its Thursday midnight deadline.

"I just don't think it would be good planning to wait until tomorrow to see what is going to happen," Broderick said. "I don't want to leave one step unturned or one hour wasted."

The tax exemption proposal, passed on a 137-8 vote without debate, is designed to tighten the current local real estate tax exemptions granted to churches, schools, public institutions and charitable organizations by making use rather than ownership of property the basis for exemptions.

It also would require the state to return to local municipalities a portion of the gross receipts tax it collects from public utility companies. Utilities would continue to be exempt from local real estate taxes on their operating facilities under this plan.

The disputed judiciary proposal, a major source of contention throughout the convention, was moved into position for final passage Tuesday over the strong objections of former State Sen. Robert P. Casey.

Casey, convention first vice president, said the judiciary proposal still contained major flaws that should be erased before being presented to the people of Pennsylvania.

"I have been told that it is too late to do anything about it," Casey said. "Well, it is not too late. We have until midnight Thursday. I think we can do better than this proposal as it now stands."

The court reform plan, probably the most hotly debated issue of the convention, has undergone major surgery since it was released to the floor more than two weeks ago.

During eight gaveling days of debate, convention delegates considered more than 100 amendments to the plan.

A major source of contention has been whether the present system of electing statewide judges should be continued, or replaced with a so-called merit selection system designed to take the judiciary out of politics.

As the proposal now stands, voters will be permitted to decide the issue for themselves in the 1969 Primary Election.

Earth Move Shakes Ashley

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Another major earth movement apparently caused by mine subsidence shook the borough of Ashley Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The Ashley Presbyterian Church was the most severely damaged structure by the new wave of movements. Numerous crews were working in the area to repair broken gas and water lines and many residents left their windows open to keep gas from collecting in their houses.

Mayor Patrick Cooney declared a state of emergency, banning all heavy vehicles from city streets. At least four streets were barred to all traffic because of shattered road beds.

Cooney also asked all persons who had no business in Ashley, a borough of 5,000 persons to stay away.

Residents reported hearing a number of noises like explosions as the latest shifting occurred.

The 475 pupils at St. Leo's Parochial School have been out of class since the first tremors hit the area last Friday. That building was severely damaged.

In 1945 a major subsidence hit the area and movement continued for five weeks.

State and federal mine inspectors were in Ashley to investigate the trouble.

Area Men in Armed Service

Army Pvt. Charles A. Wade, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Wade, RD 1, Corry, completed a wheeled vehicle mechanic course Feb. 16 at Ft. Dix, N.J.

During the course he was trained to repair internal combustion engines and wheeled vehicle chassis components. Instruction was given in the fundamentals of electrical and transmission systems.

Area Con Con Delegates Fail to Vote at Times

The three delegates from this area to the state Constitutional Convention considered 12 proposals before the convention during the week of Feb. 19 to 23. Victor J. Westerborg of Kane failed to vote on one proposal; William F. Clinger Jr. of Warren failed to vote on four proposals; and Max P. Gabreski of Oil City failed to vote on seven proposals.

The proposals were to: —Eliminate from the judicial package a provision for 10 new Philadelphia judgeships, stipulating instead that the creation of judgeships be left to the legislature. Approved 87-57; Westerborg, yes; Clinger, yes; Gabreski did not vote.

—Modify the judicial package by setting up a special family court in Allegheny County and preserve the so-called inferior courts such as traffic court and the housing court. Approved 128-5—Westerburg, yes; Clinger did not vote, Gabreski did not vote.

—Eliminate the Judicial Qualifications Commission as had been proposed earlier in the convention, thus leaving the appointment of statewide judges up to the governor, subject to two-thirds confirmation by the state Senate. Approved 78-63; Westerborg, yes; Clinger, no; Gabreski, no.

—Retain the "merit" election proposal for judges as recommended by the convention's judiciary committee providing for election of judges after their initial appointment, not against another candidate, but on their own merits with voters answering "yes" or "no" as to whether they should be retained. Approved 105-25—Westerburg, yes; Clinger did not vote; Gabreski, no.

Three Area Men Area Sentenced

CORRY—Three area men appeared for sentencing in Erie County court Monday before Judge Edward Carney.

Robert V. Cornish, 43, 220 East st., Corry, one of three defendants who admitted stealing an $800 snowmobile January 15, 1967 from the Sciota Inn, was sentenced to county jail for six to 12 months.

He and the other two defendants, Richard C. Keppel, 35, of 55 Main st., Columbus and George Christensen, 32, RD 1, Columbus, were fined $100 each and ordered to make restitution to the owner, Lawrence E. Sperry of Corry.

—Permit the legislature to change the mandatory retirement age for judges from the 70-year limit specification as proposed by the judiciary committee. Defeated 94-39—Westerburg, yes; Clinger, no; Gabreski did not vote.

—Eliminate the fee system for constables and their equivalents and place them all on a straight salary basis. Approved 76-47—Westerburg did not vote; Clinger, yes; Gabreski, no.

—Retain unchanged the present composition of the state legislature with 50 seats in the state Senate and 203 seats in the House of Representatives. Approved 102-35—Westerburg, yes; Clinger, no; Gabreski did not vote.

—Directly create a special five-member commission that would be responsible for drawing up legislative reapportionment for both House and Senate following each U.S. census. Approved 112-24—Westerburg, yes; Clinger, yes; Gabreski did not vote.

—Take final action for Proposal No. 3 to appear on the April 23 ballot; the proposal would eliminate century-old state debt limitation and authorize the state legislature to borrow, for capital projects, up to 175 per cent of Pennsylvania's average tax revenues, with greater debt permitted only with approval of the voters in a statewide referendum. Approved 114-0—Westerburg, yes; Clinger did not vote; Gabreski did not vote.

—Take final action for Proposal No. 6 to appear on the April 23 ballot; the proposal requires the state legislature to provide optional forms of government for all types of municipalities with local electorates having the right to choose their own form of government and permits all local governments including counties to be eligible for home rule charters, as well as containing several other provisions. Approved 101-1—Westerburg, yes; Clinger did not vote; Gabreski did not vote.

—Change the recommendation of the judiciary committee, which for the first time in history would constitutionally mandate the right of appeal in all court cases. Defeated 108-32—all three delegates voted no.

—Retain the seniority system in naming the presiding judges of the state Supreme Court. Approved 89-51—Westerburg, yes; Clinger, no; Gabreski, no.

Virginia Knauer of Philly Is Betty Furness of Pa.

HARRISBURG (AP) — She's only been on the job a week and never sold a refrigerator or television. But friends and associates already are calling Virginia Knauer "The Betty Furness of Pennsylvania."

That's because they expect the new head of the State Bureau of Consumer Protection to fight for the Pennsylvania buyer with the same vigor the former television saleslady is displaying as President Johnson's consumer specialist.

Mrs. Knauer, 52, whose television appearances were limited to interviews by newsmen while a two-term Philadelphia councilwoman, credits Miss Furness with bringing public attention to unethical business practices.

"People have been asking me what I'll be doing," the blonde Mrs. Knauer said. "I tell them it's the same sort of thing Betty Furness is doing on a national level."

"My main job will be to alert the public that this bureau exists, that the administration has a deep concern for consumers.

And I want to put the message into the hands of the people who need it most—the housewives."

A housewife herself, and a grandmother, Mrs. Knauer said she is glad a woman was appointed to head the bureau.

"After all," she reasoned, "They do all the shopping."

The consumer bureau was created by executive order in March, 1966. It is a division of the State Justice Department. Vacant the past several months, the position of director pays $14,657 a year.

Mrs. Knauer said she plans to focus on several areas, including greater uniformity in packaging ("People can't tell if they're getting a bargain"); dishonesty in advertising and unscrupulous "supersalesmen" such as those who fleece the public with nonworkable storm windows and siding.

"We will investigate anything that involves the protection of the consumer," she said. "This will protect honest businessmen who stand behind their products. We're after the small, shifty crowd that operates on the gullibility of people."

Despite her flashing smile and soft-spoken manner, Mrs. Knauer has proved she can be a good watchdog. In her first term on Philadelphia's council (1960-64), she was one of two Republicans opposing 15 Democrats. After her reelection, she was one of four GOP Council members.

Mrs. Knauer was defeated in her try for a third term last year, and was "enjoying retirement" when she received a call from the governor's office a few weeks ago asking if she would be interested in the consumer job.

"I came to Harrisburg for the interview, but was a bit early," she recalled. "So I went to see some friends who were delegates to the Constitutional Convention. I ran into former Governor (William) Scranton, who said, 'Good morning, Betty Furness of Pennsylvania.'"

THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY HOME AND FLOWER SHOW in Cleveland, Ohio, opens tomorrow. No doubt there are quite a few from this area, weather and roads permitting, who intend to visit this colorful harbinger of Spring and Summer. The show this year is featuring a spectacular animated electronic fantasy "The Garden of Oz" in the main arena garden floor at the Cleveland Public Auditorium, in the heart of the downtown district. The theme for the entire show (which occupies six vast halls of the auditorium) is "Touch of Magic." There is a multitude of exquisitely landscaped live gardens by Cleveland's outstanding greenhouse growers and nurserymen, and the delightful creation of "OZ" is just one of the hundreds of attractions. The Cleveland Home and Flower Show continues from tomorrow on through Sunday March 10th.

WELL, NOW, ABOUT THAT CHILI SUPPER tonight at the Pittsfield School. The serving hours are from 5 to 7:30 p. m. and don't worry, you won't be rushed through any serving line with a "Here's your chili, here's your hat and what's your hurry?"; all of which was implied in the serving hours listed in yesterday's writeup (a case of the wrong finger hitting the wrong typewriter key). The Pittsfield PTA, sponsors of the supper, emphasize that there will be plenty of time to enjoy the delicious chili and everything else on the menu! Tickets are being sold at the door: $1 adults, and 50 cents students; takeouts will be available, if you bring your own containers.

THE WEDDING OF TANYA KAY BIRT to William Collins has been announced by the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Birt of Russell. The nuptial service took place in the Scandia Mission Covenant Church on Saturday evening, February 24th, at 7:30, and was attended by the members of both families. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Collins of Kill Buck, N. Y.

MINIATURES: The Woman's Club Drama Department has scheduled the final meeting of the current year on Monday, March 4th. At that time the slate of officers for the 1968-69 season will be presented. For entertainment after the business meeting, there will be readings from different plays.

Tuesday, March 5th, the Pittsfield PTA is having Fathers Night with a special gift for each father present. The classroom having the most fathers present gets a prize. Dr. Henry Jones, WSH resident, will speak on "The Emotional Problems of Young Children." Refreshments will be served.

Tomorrow the Lady Warren Rebekahs and their families will enjoy a luncheon in the IOOF Hall at 6 p. m. The Rebekahs regular business meeting will take place afterwards.

Vangie Johnson and Lois Moravsek of 11 Warren Blvd., are the most recent of area visitors to Sarasota Jungle Gardens on Florida's Lower West Coast. The two were there on Sunday, February 25th.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a male who used to laugh at my wife because she always turned to your column first thing and quoted from it. I'm ashamed to admit I made fun of her -- and of you, too. Now I am eating a big chunk of humble pie and it serves me right. I need your help.

Our daughter is nine years old and small for her age. Yesterday as she was going from her bedroom to the bathroom I noticed she was wearing a bra. I did a double take -- couldn't believe it. That kid doesn't have anything to put in a bra and the whole idea is ludicrous.

I went downstairs and asked my wife what it was all about. "Oh," she replied, "Harriet's best girl friend has started to wear a bra and she feels very left out. I bought her one for emotional support."

I told my wife I thought she was cuckoo. She told me to mind my own business. I said I was going to write to Ann Landers. She replied, "Go ahead, Ann will be on my side." How about it? Where do you stand? -- GOGGLE-EYED

DEAR GOG: Not with a nine-year-old flat-chested kid and her cuckoo mother. The way to give pre-adolescent girls emotional support is to help them enjoy being nine years old. They should be taught to wait for adult accessories until the time is right. A brassiere can be a symbol of other things and in this instance the symbolism is all too clear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the soon-to-be-married girl wanting to know if she should confess all in regard to her past. She wanted to enter her marriage "with a clear conscience." You advised her to volunteer nothing and if he asks tell him, "Take me as I am or not at all."

That was excellent advice and I hope she listens. Too bad you weren't writing your column 16 years ago. May I say a word to every conscience-stricken girl who wishes to unburden herself: Keep your silly mouth shut -- unless you are willing to pay for it for the rest of your life. I married a rigid, unbending puritan after confessing an indiscretion which occurred when I was 16. We have been married 14 years and not a single day passes that he doesn't remind me that I was a tramp when he married me. Every time I look at a man he accuses me of something rotten. "If you did it once, you'd do it again."

He has made me feel totally inadequate as a love partner and I have become completely passive in order to protect myself against future accusations. I don't dare show any enthusiasm for his love-making because he wants to know where I learned "that trick."

Two years ago I discovered the Great White Knight had fallen from his horse. I caught him having an affair with a woman at work. His defense was, "I am entitled to do as I please because you did."

Please, Ann Landers, continue to advise girls to keep their lips buttoned if they want to have a happy married life. Telling everything one knows is not a sign of honesty. It's a sign of stupidity. -- SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Thank you for your letter. The last two sentences are gems. Are you listening, students?

Confidential to Pm For You, Peachy: You are right. Too clean is as sick as too sloppy. Moderation makes the best sense. If I had to settle for one extreme or the other, I'd sooner live with someone who is too clean.

Scalise-Tassone Nuptials Solemnized

Linda Scalise and Joseph Tassone Jr. exchanged double ring vows recently at a Nuptial Mass celebrated in St. Joseph Church. The Rev. Father Norman A. Smith, assistant pastor, was celebrant of the Mass and read the wedding rites in the presence of approximately three hundred and fifty guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Richard Scalise of 104 Duncan Blvd., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tassone of 44 Musante street, Warren.

Mrs. Thomas Donnelly provided wedding music at the organ and Robert Dietsch was the vocal soloist. Vases of white gladioli and Fuji mums and lighted tapers adorned the altar of the church.

In a long flowing gown of white peau de soie, fashioned in an A-line silhouette, the bride approached the altar on the arm of her father. The empire bodice of the gown was embellished with richly re-embroidered Alencon lace with crystal beads and seed pearls, which also defined the neckline. Garlands of the lace adorned the long belled sleeves; scallops of the lace formed the wrist bands. The graceful folds of the Watteau train swept to chapel length and her bouffant veil of English silk illusion depended from looped lace bows edged with seed pearls, and pearl leaves formed a frame for her face. She carried a cascade of Phalaenopsis orchids and white sweetheart roses accented with beaded Stephanotis and ivy streamers.

The maid of honor was Miss Cheryl Scalise, sister of the bride; Miss Nancy Scalise, her younger sister, was the junior bridesmaid. Bridesmaids were Linda Brunato, cousin of the bride, Teresa Tassone, sister of the groom, and Carol Swanson. All wore purple velvet with lilac satin contrasts and purple spray headdresses with circular veils. Their flowers were cascades of lavender and purple mums.

The miniature bride, carrying a nosegay of white roses, was Betsy Wilson and the miniature groom was Ronnie Scalise, both cousins of the bride.

The best man was John Tassone, brother of the groom, and ushers were Anthony Rizzo, cousin of the groom, Charles Gallagher, Robert Suppa and Randy Scalise, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride was in a costume of blue brocade and matching hat with veil, had a corsage of yellow carnations; the mother of the groom chose a beige brocade ensemble with matching rose petal hat and veil and a corsage of tangerine carnations. Mrs. S. Anthony Scalise and Mrs. John Tassone, grandmothers, were among those present. Each had a pink carnation corsage.

The reception was held in St. Paul's Center at Saybrook with three hundred and fifty guests in attendance. An ice centerpiece with flower arrangements ornamented the buffet table. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brunato were the master and mistress of ceremonies. Aides were Shirley Stevenson, Janet Cough, Barbara Tassone and Cam Tassone.

For traveling to the Pocono

Mountains, the new Mrs. Tassone wore a green dress with white coat and black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Tassone are now residing at 208 Onondaga avenue.

Fashion Show March 5th

The Russell-Lander Pre-School Mothers Clubs are sponsoring a fashion show at the Russell Elementary school on Tuesday evening, March 5, at 8 p. m. "Spring Happenings" will be the theme of the show.

Fashions will be from Morrisons, with Mrs. James Carlson and Mrs. Weston Wilcox, and also student nurses from Warren State Hospital as models.

The evening will include refreshments and door prizes. Tickets are 75 cents and may be obtained from any member of both groups or at the door.

The committee held a meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Gray in Russell to complete plans for the affair. Mrs. Gray is president of the Russell group and Mrs. Robert Knopf is president of the Lander group.

The Villain

According to an article in the March issue of Family Circle Magazine, in children who are lethargic, lack appetite, and suffer malaise and low-grade fever, a frequent and often overlooked cause is an abscessed tooth -- and the diseased tooth may not be painful at all. So reports Dr. G. H. Valentine of the University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario. Although it would seem that an abscess -- coming after decay has penetrated into the pulp of a tooth, exposing the nerve and setting up infection -- should cause excruciating pain, it does not in a child, perhaps because a child's jaw is still relatively soft and accommodating. Nor does the abscess necessarily break out; sometimes the only evidence of infection is a purple discoloration of the mucous membrane in the area of the root of the tooth. Careful inspection by a physician of the mouth of a child with such vague symptoms as low-grade fever and lethargy is worth-while, Dr. Valentine reports. Most likely to be infected is a first molar tooth, upper or lower. If an abscess is discovered, it should be treated promptly by a dentist. Even though spontaneous cure will follow shedding of baby teeth, prompt treatment may save years of below-par health.

Home Street Parents Shown Slides of Island School

Home Street Parents Club, after the regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, were shown slides of the Nama Island School; the slides were given to the school by the interested parents of a Peace Corps Volunteer. The teachers of Warren County became involved in the interests of the children of Nama Island through the Peace Corps in Washington. Miss Dorothy Lincoln, school principal, showed the slides and was the commentator.

Nama Island is one of the Truk group of the Caroline Islands in the Western Pacific, about 2,500 miles southwest of Hawaii.

The Warren County teachers contributed $1,000 towards the building of the Nama Island School, which has been named Pennsylvania School. The building is a one story wooden structure with a cement floor. Prior to the erection of this substantial building, they used a shelter of twigs and leaves of certain plants woven together and the children sat on crushed coral. There is no electricity on the island.

The children of Home Street School's 4th, 5th and 6th grades have been corresponding with the children of Nama Island for several months and have been sending them articles of interest. In return, they have received articles from their island friends; some of the items are on display at the local school. The last box sent by Home Street children to Nama Island was filled with View Masters and slides, an album by the 6th grade students containing many photos of Warren and the surrounding area, also descriptive pamphlets; pictures drawn by the 4th graders; letters by the 5th and 6th graders; also Red Cross magazines and Weekly Readers; 6th grade girls also included in the package, hair bands, since some had been received from the Nama Island girls.

Miss Lincoln expects to be interviewed by a Peace Corps representative in March.

President Carl Papalia presided at the meeting; devotions were led by Russell Theilin. During the business meeting, Dr. Theodore Kottraba was appointed chairman of a committee to plan the annual 6th grade trip. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting by Mrs. Jack Donaldson and her committee, Mrs. Donald Hunter and Mrs. Robert Brumberg.

EYELASH CLEANSER

If you like to wear eye makeup, but have a problem removing it with cream at night, you may want to try the special mascara-removing cleansers on the market. A cotton swab moistened with baby oil is also a good eye cleanser.

Name Erie Woman Girl Scout Official

Penn Lakes Girl Scout Council announces the appointment of Mrs. Robert Scollon, of Erie, as Field Staff Supervisor effective tomorrow. She will be responsible for the recruitment, assignment, training, and supervision of the field advisors serving Crawford, Erie, Forest, Mercer and Warren counties and will work closely with the functional staff in the areas of personnel program, and public relations.

In addition, Mrs. Scollon will provide technical assistance to the council vice-president who coordinates the work of district chairmen.

Mrs. Scollon has a varied background of experience having worked for Capitol Airlines in Washington, D. C., Child and Family Services in Norfolk, Virginia, the Youngstown, Ohio, Girl Scout Council and most recently the Lake to River Girl Scout Council in Niles, Ohio.

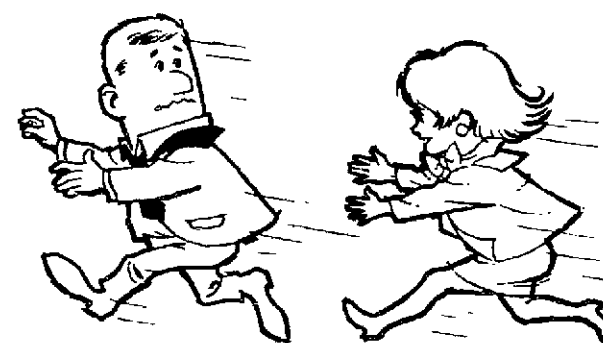

During the six years she has held Girl Scout positions Mrs. Scollon has been a field advisor responsible for training, camp directing and editing council bulletins. She has traveled extensively in the United States, the Caribbean and Europe. Her hobbies are reading and gardening.

She is a native of Knoxville,

Tennessee. She attended Brigham Young University and graduated with a B.A. degree in Political Science and Sociology from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

Mrs. Scollon's husband, Dr. Robert Scollon, is associate professor of Psychology at Edinboro State College. They have four children and reside at 3217 Pine Tree Terrace, Erie.

The bidding
East South West North
Pass 2NT Pass 6NT
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠
By obtaining an exact count of his opponents' distribution, South was enabled to uncover the unorthodox line of play that was required to salvage his six trump contract.

The slam was reached by direct arithmetic. South's opening two no trump bid announces 22-24 points [observe that possession of all four aces adds an additional point to his holding, bringing it up to the required count].

North has 12 high card points and, since he knows the partnership has a maximum of 36 which is not enough to undertake a grand slam, he proceeds directly to six no trump.

West opened the jack of spades. The king was played from dummy and declarer took time to count up his assets. If the clubs responded favorably, he could count four tricks in that suit which together with three spades, three hearts, and one diamond brought him up to 11. A 12th trick might be forthcoming in either hearts or diamonds.

At trick two, a club was led from dummy to declarer's king. With the appearance of the eight from East's hand, South continued by laying down the ace next. When East discarded a diamond, declarer ran the balance of the suit by taking the proven finesse against West's jack. East gave up another diamond and a spade.

South tested the hearts next, and East showed out on the third round—discarding another spade. Declarer cashed out his remaining spades and, when East followed suit each time, his original distribution became an open book. The play revealed that he had five spades, two hearts, and one club. He must, therefore, have started with five diamonds.

All hands except West were down to three diamonds while the latter was left with the ten of hearts and the jack-eight of diamonds.

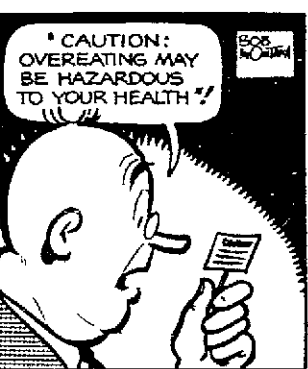

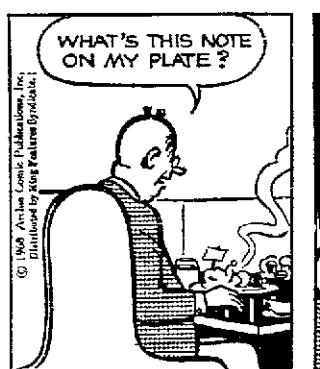

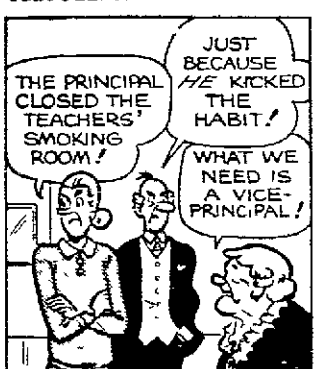

South led the three of diamonds from his hand and, when West followed with the eight, North covered with the nine. East was in with the ten, and his forced return away from the king enabled declarer to win the last two tricks with the queen and ace.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)--You may not be able to manage everything you wish, but you CAN stay on the right track and achieve a lot. Where needed, revise schedule without delay.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)--Uncertainty could offset the results of your best efforts, so be decisive. There are fine devices and means designed to fill your needs; use them efficiently. Marshal all your talents, will power and experience with a view toward taking brisk steps forward.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)--In writings and organizational matters be extremely meticulous, moving in gradual, measured steps. In all activities, be sure you take every factor into consideration.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)--You should have easier sledding than many others now--as long as you are prompt and conduct your affairs with logic and candor. Curb a tendency toward restlessness.

LEO (July 24 to August 3)--Excellent planetary influences! Make use of them to advance all worthwhile aims, to strengthen financial security. Emphasize your versatility.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)--How you present yourself will attract cooperation or detract from your standing, up or downgrade your attainment. Be scrupulous about ethics, procedure.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)--For the straight-shooting, up-and-up person, this day has many opportunities. Heed prerequisites, be consistently accurate.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)--You may encounter some natural differences of opinion, so adjustment AND compromise will be in order. Don't yield where matters of high principle are at stake, however. SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)--What the day lacks in bringing you incentive and ambition, YOU can supply by determinedly brightening your performance and being faithful to obligations. Emphasize fair play for all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)--You may have to revise some plans, change tactics, perhaps hold a conference or two. But, in the end, what you do well now will produce substantial dividends.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)--Put your best foot forward as you are now in the forefront where you will be seen and judged. New trends are in the making. Study them carefully.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)--Making adjustments, concluding pending transactions and granting some leeway where others may expect you to "hold the line" will all be part of the better plan to achieve gains. Aim only for quality endeavor.

YOU BORN TODAY are agreeable, an eager student, a willing worker if the goal is worthwhile. You never tire in effort, but can become uncertain about whether your endeavors are appreciated. Ascertain if your methods and standards are top-notch, but do not fret or be fearful. Provide for the "rainy days," when you must call upon savings. But STOP worrying; it hampers your achievement. Your responsible nature and vision fit you for modern attainment; you research thoroughly, are artistic, love uniformity. You have staying power and a knack for handling people locked in disputes. Many stylists, critics and essayists have been Pisces-born.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

AFTER A HEART ATTACK
Men who have recovered from coronary thrombosis need not be doomed to a sedentary existence or to invalidism. The majority are encouraged to return to work and to indulge in some form of exercise. Activity improves morale as well as circulation.

The coronary arteries supply oxygen and other nutrients to the heart muscle. When one of these vessels is obstructed by a clot or thrombus, some of the muscle fibers are robbed of their blood supply and die. The outcome hinges on whether the obstruction took place in the main coronary artery or in one of its smaller branches.

Following recovery, there is no need to live a vegetative existence. Statistics have proved that men and women who return to work live longer than those who retire. But this does not mean the resumption of heavy labor or returning to a job with tremendous responsibility and tension. Exercise is not harmful provided the individual enjoys what he is doing. Some prefer walking; others like golf, croquet, cycling, bowling, or swimming in warm water. Competitive sports are out because they are likely to be associated with tension. The same is true of exertion that leads to angina pectoris or shortness of breath.

We know that moderate exercise stimulates new blood vessels to bridge the blocked artery, thus bringing a fresh source of blood to the starving heart muscle. These arteries (collaterals) replace old, narrowed vessels. An operation to bring in new sources of blood now is an established procedure. It is safe but the surgeon is likely to insist upon a variety of sophisticated tests before he consents to operate.

TOMORROW: Epidemic Bright's Disease.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

PURPLE HIPS

Mrs. E. R. writes: I have purple lines on my hips. Why?

REPLY
Striae appear in this area as purple streaks in heavy people who have lost considerable weight. They also are associated with certain glandular disorders. Now and then these lines develop after taking adrenal hormones over a long period of time for arthritis, rheumatic fever, or asthma. I assume you are not referring to black and blue marks that indicate hemorrhage under the skin.

COLDS AND VEGETABLES

A mother writes: My 6-year-old daughter has a continuous cold. Do you think it is because she won't eat green vegetables?

REPLY
No. If she drinks milk and eats fruit, she will obtain the same minerals and vitamins she would get in green vegetables. Furthermore, diet has little to do with colds and, in addition, your child is at an age when colds are common.

Sidey New Manager At Starbrick Motors

SIDEY

100 Years Old

This is the Year of the Elk as the 100th anniversary of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks is observed by 1.5 million members in 2,100 lodges across the nation and in the Canal Zone, Guam, the Philippines and Puerto Rico. Charles Vivian, entertainer son of an English clergyman, founded the organization with 14 friends. Since 1880, the Elks have spent more than $205 million on charitable projects and contribute $10 million annually to benevolences.

John R. Sidey of 12 S. Carver st., Warren, has been named sales manager at the Starbrick Motors in Warren. It was announced by Roger Troyer, general manager, today. The appointment is effective March 1st.

Sidey has been a member of the sales staff at Starbrick Motors for the past year.

A native of Waverly, New York, for many years he was associated with the Ford Motor Company in Detroit, at which time he received automotive experience in many capacities. Prior to that time he was employed by DuPont as a technical representative.

A former all-around sports star in Waverly High School, Sidey also held the Susquehanna Valley singles tennis championship for five years.

He attended Wyoming Seminary in Kingston, Pa., and won the University of Pennsylvania cup as the best athlete scholar of his graduating class.

Sidey then attended Syracuse University where he competed in varsity football, basketball, track and tennis, being undefeated in the net game in inter-collegiate play.

Sidey joined the U.S. Army in 1940 as the first volunteer from the Susquehanna Valley for World War II service. He was discharged a captain in 1945 after being a rifle company commander, with two years of his service overseas with the 36th Division. He was in combat in Africa and Italy and handled a platoon in the initial landing at Salerno, the first successful assault on a defended beach on the European continent during the war.

Following the war, Sidey returned to Syracuse and obtained his degree in history and science.

Former Warrenite to End 35 Years With Sinclair

TULSA, Okla. — Charles H. Lindberg, senior safety representative for Sinclair Oil & Gas Company, will complete 35 years with the company Friday.

A veteran of the petroleum industry, Lindberg was employed in 1924 by Conewango Refining Company, Warren, and joined Sinclair in 1933 at the time Conewango was purchased by Sinclair.

He was foreman for Sinclair Pipe Line Company during construction of a products pipe line in Pennsylvania beginning in 1941. He went to Sinclair Pipe Line's home office in Independence, Kans., in 1947 and became manager of the safety department there in 1949.

Lindberg is a member of the American Petroleum Institute, National Safety Council, Veterans of Safety, American Society of Safety Engineers, and has been active in the American Red Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindberg, who reside at 2842 S. Boston ave., have two sons, Jack M. Lindberg, Kansas City, Mo., and Charles H. Lindberg Jr., Toledo, Ohio.

Armored Phones

To prevent thefts of cash, telephone pay stations use remote money banks in which the deposited coin is released into a steel tube that is built into a nickel stainless steel backboard.

Count Casimir Pulaski, who organized the first cavalry regiment in the Revolutionary War for Gen. George Washington, introduced the idea of dragons, soldiers who could fight on foot or horseback.

Dividend Declared

The board of directors of Acme Electric Corporation, Cuba, New York, has declared a quarterly dividend of $.04 per share of common stock payable on March 20, 1968, to holders of record at the close of business on March 5, 1968.

Penelec's Construction Budget Includes Warren Area Projects

A construction budget of $76 million for 1968, the largest in its history, was announced today by Pennsylvania Electric Company.

The record spending program, including significant amounts for projects in the utility's Northern Division, was cited by the utility as evidence of its "confidence in the future economic growth of this area" and its "commitment to be prepared to meet all future demands for low-cost electricity while assuring high levels of reliability of service to our customers."

The $76 million spending this year compares with $50.8 million in 1967 and $58.6 million in 1966, the previous record.

Penelec President Ralph F. Bovier said nearly two-thirds of the record budget will be spent for projects associated with expanding Penelec's power generating capability, and that work at the new Homer City Station and related projects will cost more than $40.5 million alone. The large, mine-owned station in southern Indiana County is being built by Penelec and New York State Electric and Gas Corporation.

Bovier said other major projects included in the budget are:

- continued work on the Seneca Pumped Storage Hydroelectric Station being built at the Kinzua Dam near Warren by Penelec and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company. The station will serve customers of both companies;

- construction of about 3.4 miles of transmission line into and out of the Homer City Station from a line that begins at the Keystone Generating Station, passes through Johnstown and Altoona and terminates in Lewistown. The line will provide initial start-up power for the first 640,000 kilowatt unit at Homer City Station;

- land acquisition and studies for a possible nuclear fast breeder power station near Meshoppen essentially to serve growing and expanded industrial and residential demands in the northeastern section of the Company's service area. The research and development project is being conducted by Penelec and the Atomic International Division of North American Rockwell Corporation. A decision whether to build the "demonstration reactor project" will be made in 1970;

- several major transmission and distribution projects designed to extend service to new customers and to reinforce or provide alternate sources of power supply to existing customers throughout Penelec's 33-county service area;

- completion of substation and transmission network projects associated with the Keystone Station, Penelec, although not an owner of the station, is building a substantial part of the Keystone transmission facilities;

- progress on installation of a microwave circuit from the main power dispatching center in Johnstown to provide additional flexibility and reliability for Penelec's systemwide communications network.

The Homer City Station outlay will be to continue all phases of construction on the 1,280,000 kilowatt facility being built 20 miles northwest of Johnstown. The station was started in November 1965 and the first 640,000 kilowatt unit is expected to be in operation in 1969, with the second unit starting up the following year.

Related projects include expansion of Penelec's Erie South Substation and construction of a new Erie West Switching Station, which will be the terminus of a 120-mile transmission line from Homer City Station, passing west of Oil City and east of Meadville. It will serve customers in the utility's Northern and Northwestern Divisions. In addition, preliminary work will begin for construction of a 19-mile transmission line from the station to the Johnstown area.

David R. Smith Jr., Northern Division manager, reported that major allocations for the division, including all or parts of Crawford, Venango, Forest, Clarion, Elk, Warren, McKean, Potter, Tioga, Bradford, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Wayne and Lycoming Counties, are to:

- construct new substations on Poplar street in Towanda to meet growing power demands by residential customers, and in Seneca, near Oil City, to meet increasing demands by light industrial, commercial and residential customers;

- rebuild distribution lines between Youngsville and Starbrick near Warren due to the relocation of Route 6;

- complete installation of a new transformer to meet an increased demand at the Owens-Illinois Forest Products Division plant in Bradford;

- complete a 12-mile line to provide an alternate power source to customers in the Ulysses, Genesee, Galeton and Denton Hill areas;

- build distribution lines from Tionesta Junction switching station in Penelec's Knox District to serve growing demands of both light industrial and residential customers in the Venus, Fryburg-Marble area;

- build a new line from the Titusville Substation to an area adjacent to Sylvania Electric Products' plant on Pleasantville Road near Titusville to meet growing residential, commercial and industrial demands;

- build a new line from the Titusville Substation to serve a new electric furnace at Universal Cyclops Corporation in Titusville;

- build a line to serve an electric furnace in the Electralloy plant in the former Worthington Building in Oil City.

- build distribution lines near the new Seneca Hydroelectric Station in connection with that project, and distribution lines in the Brooklyn-Kingsley area south of Meadville and in the west side of Sayre Borough will be converted to higher voltages to meet increasing customer demands in those areas;

- begin construction on a new Wayne Substation in southern Crawford County to further strengthen the transmission facilities serving the Meadville, Oil City and Erie areas;

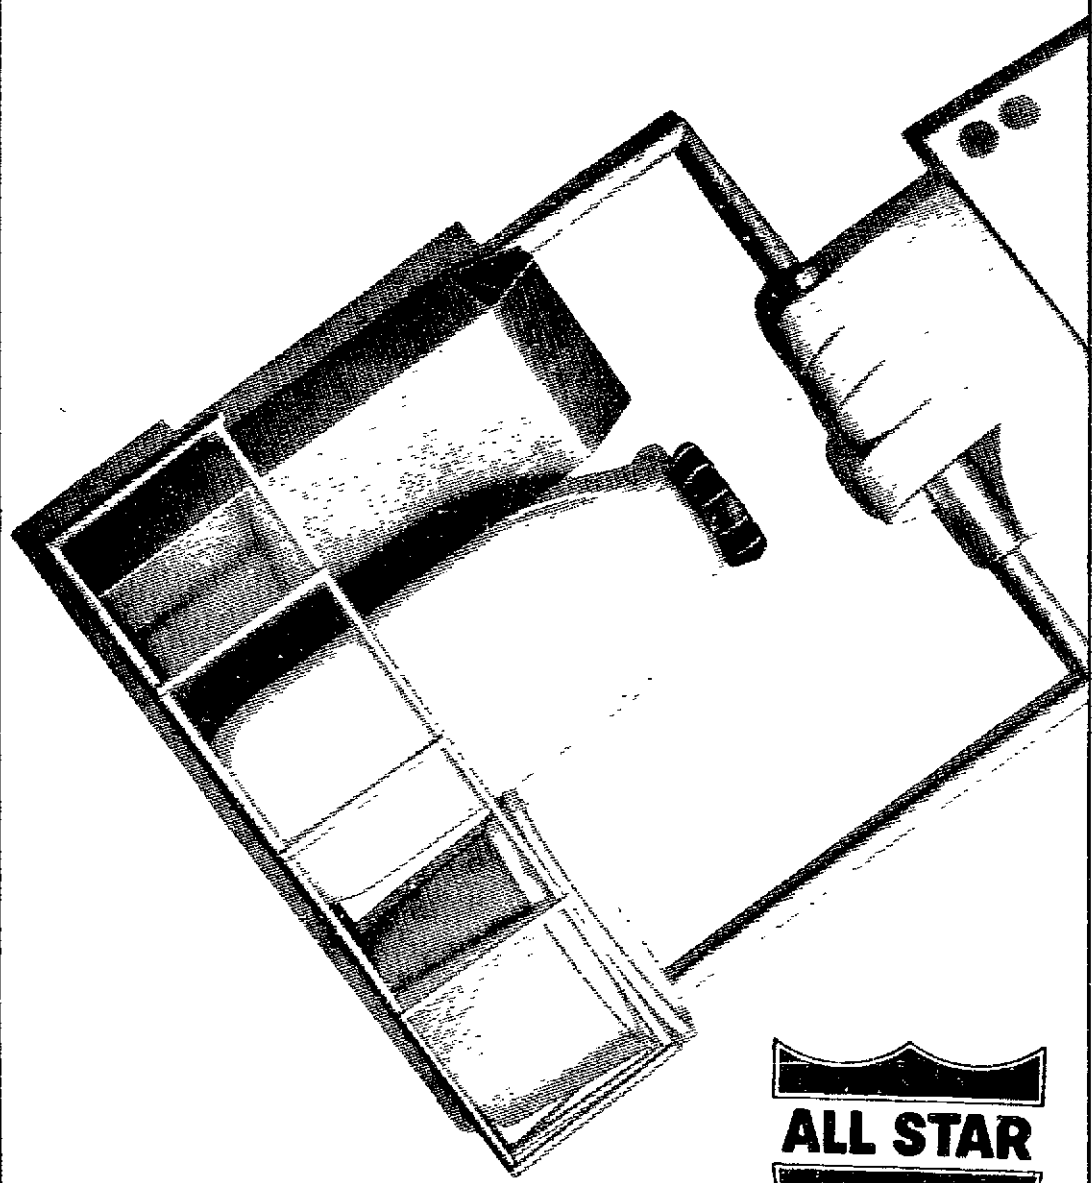

- to continue conversion of incandescent street lighting as municipalities adopt mercury vapor lighting projects to provide greater illumination for traffic and pedestrians;

- expand the Titusville Substation to serve recent and anticipated growth in demand in the area;

- modify facilities at Penelec's Forest Substation in western Elk County and build about three miles of additional high voltage transmission line to the Elk Substation of West Penn Power Company in a project that will create an additional interconnection between Penelec and West Penn Power;

- and continue construction of two transmission lines from Penelec's Glade Substation southwest of Warren to the Company's Forest Substation-to-Erie transmission line and a transmission link from Glade to the Seneca Pumped Storage Station.

Area Delegate Reports on Con Con

By MAX P. GABRESKI

(Delegate from the 25th Senatorial District to the Constitutional Convention)

I wish to report to the voters of Elk, Forest, McKean, Warren and Venango Counties that the Delegates to the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention have been working overtime to meet the deadline today. It appears that the deadline will be reached; however, with some strain.

The delegates to the Convention have approached their task of rewriting the four Articles on apportionment, taxation and finance, local government and the judiciary with an extremely conservative tone. It appears that the results will be conservative rather than liberal. If I were to classify the efforts of the three Delegates from our Senatorial District, namely, William Clinger, Victor Westerberg and Max P. Gabreski, I would say that Victor Westerberg would be on the extreme conservative side and that William Clinger and Max Gabreski would have been on the liberal side tending toward reform and tending toward non-partisan approach to the work of the Convention. Reporting objectively, this would not necessarily be true of the Assemblyman Delegate to the Convention.

May I give my personal opinion on reapportionment. The majority of the Delegates voted to keep the legislature at its present size, namely, 50 Senators and 203 Representatives. This was much to my dislike; I was hopeful that we would have the number in the legislature reduced. However, political consideration of the Delegates appeared to be uppermost and they prevailed to the extent that, I believe, in the future reapportionment will be difficult as there appears to be very little flexibility. This is not a major deficiency of the work of the Convention despite its rigidity. The section dealing with how Pennsylvania will reapportion itself after each Federal census is a well written Article of which I am hopeful all of the electors will approve.

The census figures on reapportionment according to the new Article are turned over not to the legislature as in the past, but to a new committee to do the job. If they fail, the Supreme Court will take over.

The taxation and finance Article appears to be a very well thought out committee plan which provides for new freedoms for Pennsylvania, tightens up financial administration, introduces new accounting procedures and does many things in the field of borrowing, namely, permitting the legislature to borrow without resorting to the authority's device. If there is any deficiency, it is that it sets up a constitutional provision with respect to utilities which have never been covered by the Constitution heretofore. The article on taxation and finance seemed to favor the local municipality townships in order to provide revenues for them at the expense of tax-exempt property. Overall, I feel that the Article will prove beneficial to all of Pennsylvania.

With respect to local government, it is the opinion of many that this proposal is one of the finest ever produced by any constitutional assembly in the United States. If the proposal is accepted by the voters in April, all forms of local government will find strength and freedom to do things which we were unable to do in the past on a county level, on a township and municipal level. The Article provides for area cooperation and strengthening of government on the county level if it suits the voters to do so.

The Judiciary Article, as it now stands, provides the following improvements in our judicial system:

- 1. A unified system of justice and of court administration throughout the State.

2. Orderly retirement of judges, proper and humane provisions for removing judges who have grown physically or mentally infirm.
3. Preserving the justices of the peace in rural Pennsylvania, while at the same time reducing the number of them. The Article provides for qualifications of justices of the peace and subjects them to control of the local county court or to the Supreme Court according to its rules.
It is anticipated that the Justices of the Peace will no longer operate under a fee system but on a salary paid for by the Commonwealth. The fines and costs normally generated will ensure to the local municipality, county or state, as the law may provide, and it is the experience in other states that the costs and fines will more than adequately provide for the salaries of the minor judiciary system. A community court was provided for those judicial districts that desire them. Local initiative by referendum will be necessary to implement a community court system in each judicial district. As of the date of this memorandum, the selection of judges on a statewide level is still somewhat unsettled. To date, the delegates to the Convention have adopted a plan of appointment of our Superior and Supreme Court justices by the Governor with the consent to two-thirds of the Senate. It seems that it will be very favorable that a stout proposal will be adopted, whereby the Governor will not only have the option of going through the appointment of judges with the advice and consent of the Senate, but also implement a nonpartisan judicial commission who will recommend to him 10 to 20 names of the justices to be appointed to the Supreme and Superior Courts. The favorable action on this proposal seems to be certain.

The work at the Convention was most rewarding to me. As a former practical politician and now as an idealist, I was unable to prevail with my ideas. The new provisions are more conservative than I would have liked, but I can honestly say that they have lost nothing that was vital to the welfare of Pennsylvania. As it appears to me at this time, I will be able to honestly support and advocate the adoption of the work of the Convention in the April 23 primary. I feel that the Delegates to the Convention have done a tremendous job, and their product is a true reflection of a consensus of what is best for Pennsylvania at this time.

I am writing this memorandum as there appears to be very little time to inform the public of the work of the Convention. The only information that will be forthcoming from the staff of the Convention will be a 48 to 64 page booklet explaining precisely what the provisions of the Constitution are and what they will mean to the individual citizen or to the Commonwealth and its subdivisions. These booklets are intended principally for newspapers, radio stations, libraries and colleges, but copies should be available in each community, and I would recommend that all of the voters study them.

There will also be a four-page document mailed generally and which will summarize the booklet. I am hopeful that each voter in our District will get a copy. The Delegates have spent a tremendous amount of energy and have truly sacrificed to come out with a workable proposal. We have played our part in writing history, and it is hopeful that the voters will play their part in exercising an intelligent decision on April 23. It is a fond hope of all of the Delegates, and I am certain of our local Delegates, that each voter study, listen, compare notes with his neighbor, and decide what is in the best interests of our Commonwealth.
